MADRID SURRENDERS, WAR ENDS

75,000 Eggs Destroyed As Power Fails

EASTER CHICKS PERISH BEFORE HATCHING TIME

HOMES WITHOUT LIGHTS

Power Company Rushing New Transformer From Shelby to Crawford Village.

(By Staff Correspondent)

NEW WASHINGTON—Industry was paralyzed here today and hatcheries were counting their losses in the thousands of dollars as more than 75,000 embryonic Easter chicks died before they were hatched when the city's electric power failed yesterday noon.

With each hour that the electric current is out losses at seven of this city's eight hatcheries were mounting steadily and operators said today that if the current were not turned on by the end of the day the entire incubator stock of 150,000 eggs would be killed before the chicks could be hatched.

Rush New Transformer.

The city's electric power failed Monday noon when a big transformer burned out, and although officials of the Ohio Midland Light and Power company were rushing a new 13-ton transformer from Shelby to this village, it had not arrived this morning and workers said that it would take more than five hours to install it.

Although homes were without lights, and a number of business concerns and manufacturing concerns, notably the feed mills, and the Bremer Aluminum Manufacturing company, were unable to operate, the greatest catastrophe to this community is the loss of heat at the hatcheries which constitute the town's greatest industry.

$10,000 Loss Reported.

About half of the incubator "settings" due to be hatched out tomorrow, and representing 75,000 eggs valued at approximately $10,000 was considered a total loss today, with the other eggs jeopardized by lack of heat. The baby chicks sell for prices ranging from 10 to 25 cents each. No insurance is carried on the eggs or chicks, it was reported.

The town's telephone system was still functioning today, and officials of the company expressed the belief that the telephone batteries would be able to carry through the emergency.

Hatcherymen said today that if the current were turned on before night they believed a part of the eggs could be saved.

Fans Have Their Inning Tomorrow At Baseball Party

Mansfield's most elaborate baseball party in years will be staged in the American Legion auditorium at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday when a "Fan Night" affair is held to stimulate interest in the city's new entry in the Ohio State league.

Plans for the baseball party were completed at a meeting of the Citizens' committee headed by Herbert R. Slough at the Chamber of Commerce last night.

Featuring the "Fan Night" celebration, which will be open to the public, will be the showing of the official films of the American and National leagues.

The affair will also mark the first public appearance of Norman Cohen of Toledo, president of the club, and Damon (Buzz) Wetzel, business manager.

Bill Bradley, chief scout of the Cleveland Indians, will represent Mansfield's major league affiliate at the fan meeting.

A ticket drive for the opening day game will be launched by the Citizens' committee next week. The Mansfield club begins its season under the lights at the fairground Wednesday, May 3.

FAMILIES FLEE

Ice Gorge on Missouri Causes Flood Threat in Dakota.

BISMARK, N. D.—(INS)—Between 200 and 300 families abandoned their homes along the Missouri river south of Bismark today when an ice gorge 10 miles long and in places eight miles wide choked the river and brought fears of a serious flood.

The threatened area is about 20 miles south of Bismark, but the capital city of North Dakota, situated on a high bluff, was not in danger.

O. W. Roberts, weather bureau official, said the ice gorge had caused the river to back up, raising it from a normal depth of about 17½ feet to flood stage of 21.8 feet. Roberts said unless the gorge was broken up the river might rise another two or three feet, necessitating removal of about 300 more families.

Rumania's King Plays Cagey Game To Keep Rich Little Country Free

Hohenzollern Descendant Stands In Way of Hitler's Drive.

(By Associated Press)

A SQUARE-JAWED Hohenzollern stands athwart the Nazi dream lane down the Danube, pathway to the East.

Like Hitler, Rumania's King Carol II is a dictator, forceful, adept in politics, practical, and in many ways a self-made man.

But Carol is no ascetic there's a tilt to his crown, meat on his table, romance in his life and often a smile on his lips.

"We all have the God-given right to order our own lives and follow our own sentiments," says the man who once renounced his throne for love.

As a princely playboy, he set Europe's tongues to wagging. Now he is 46, serious and portly and a key figure in moves that may determine whether Europe is to have peace or war.

BACKGROUND

The new trade treaty between Germany and Rumania ties the rich, little Balkan country close to the expanding Nazi empire—economically. Will Germany be satisfied with that? Hitler hasn't said. But Rumania is an important gateway to the Ukraine, a Hitler goal. Whether Germany ever uses that gateway depends to a big extent on the man who rules it. This is his story.

Nazi Dreamland?

His realm, about the size of Arizona, is the mouth of a funnel of mountains and rivers of eastern Europe. There the Danube and Dneiper flow into the Black Sea. There the Carpathians and Transylvanian Alps converge. There is produced a fourth of Europe's crude oil and a sizable portion of its farm crops.

No wonder Hitler eyes it, largest and richest country of the Balkans. Control would go a long way toward making the Nazi dream of self-sufficiency come true.

But if it's going to be a scrap, Carol should know his way around. Love, war, diplomacy, purges and politics — just name the game, Carol knows the rules.

It wasn't long after the Reich stretched its borders over the Czech mountains last year that Carol called on Paris, London—and Berlin.

At that time, too, Rumanian police made quick work of a domestic crop of Nazis. Fourteen were killed. The German press frothed.

CZECH EDUCATOR GOES TO OBERLIN

Dr. Kozak, Now Under Arrest, to Join Faculty Next Year.

OBERLIN—(U.P.)—Dr. J. B. Kozak who succeeded the late Thomas Masaryk, as head of the philosophy department at the University of Prague when the latter retired to become president of Czechoslovakia, will join the faculty of Oberlin college next year, President Ernest Hatch Wilkins announced today.

Now under arrest in Prague, Kozak is expected to leave for America as soon as he can obtain his release. Officials of the United States department of state are negotiating with his Nazi captors to hasten his departure for this country. President Wilkins understood.

La Follette Measure Would Outlaw 'Strike-Breakers,' 'Spies.'

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Chairman Robert La Follette, Prog., Wis., of the senate civil liberties committee, introduced a bill today to outlaw the use of strike-breakers—defined as persons paid a bonus to replace striking workers.

The measure also would outlaw use of strike-breaking agencies and industrial spies and restrict use of private company guards.

BULLETS HIT 2

Dover Officer Wounds Pair in Tavern 'Mistake' Shooting.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Police Sergeant Dewey Bailey shot and wounded two persons today at Elzona tavern, Dover night club.

The police officer said he shot the club's bartender, Stephen Lukenic, 39, of Lorain, by mistake as he left the club to summon help to subdue Joseph Ross, 39, also of Lorain.

Bailey said he went to the club in response to a telephoned alarm complaining of a "burglar." The "burglar," he said, turned out to be Ross, former suitor of Miss Pearl Adams, 41, club employe.

Ross fired at William Ginther, a porter, inside the club but missed, Bailey said. Hearing the gunfire, Bailey said he rushed inside and wounded Ross twice.

CRASH DRIVER GETS $200 FINE

Pleads Guilty After Striking and Seriously Injuring Woman at Crossing.

Clinton G. Burger, 52, of R. D. 1, Mansfield, whose automobile struck and seriously injured a 39-year-old mother late yesterday, pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and was fined $200. His driver's license was revoked for one year.

Meanwhile the victim, Mrs. Peter Urschel, 18 Lincoln avenue, was reported in a "fair" condition at the General hospital. Attendants said she suffered a fractured leg and wrist, possible rib fractures and lacerations of the head.

The accident occurred at 5 p. m. at South Diamond street and Lincoln avenue, as Mrs. Urschel attempted to cross the street after alighting from a bus.

Patrolman Frend C. Boals said that Burger struck Mrs. Urschel and then drove approximately 200 feet before bringing his car to a stop with the right front wheel over the curb.

The officer told the court that

STATE WORKERS FLEE LIFT FIRE

Office Building Blaze Sends Smoke to Upper Floors.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Scores of state officials and employes fled from the state office building on the bank of the Scioto river today when a small fire broke out in an elevator shaft.

Clouds of smoke poured into the upper floors of the building. Firemen believed a short circuit in electric wiring at the eighth floor caused the fire.

Flames shot up the elevator cables burning oil and grease. No one was injured but work was stopped on the upper floors.

Professors Urge City Sleepers to Wear Earmuffs.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Dr. Vern Knudsen, professor of physics at University of California at Los Angeles, recommends earmuffs for city sleepers.

The damage to their health from noise-disturbed sleep is "unbelievably great," he told a gathering of scientists and students, and earmuffs would be of benefit.

Mystery Solved — Prosecutor And Sheriff Go For Prisoner

County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott and Sheriff E. P. Long, who left the city yesterday in secrecy, are in Pittsburgh to return a prisoner wanted here for removing a mortgaged car, it was learned today.

The prosecutor and sheriff left together in the sheriff's car, both refusing to say where they were going, or why. Deputy sheriffs and attaches of the prosecutor's office professed to know nothing about where the two officials were going.

"Maybe we are just going on a little fishing trip for two or three days," Marriott said yesterday before he and the sheriff "vanished."

The officials were expected back in Mansfield tonight or Wednesday morning with their prisoner who is accused of going to Pennsylvania with the mortgaged car without permission.

The prosecutor accompanied Long on the trip so as to avoid any legal difficulty in having the prisoner extradited, it was said. The man's name was not available.

FINDS BUDGET OFFERS LITTLE RELIEF HOPE

MATCHING FUNDS LACKING

Governor Says $302,000,000 Budget for Next 2 Years Will Balance Revenue.

As the two-year state budget of $302,032,000 went before the Ohio legislature committees today with Gov. John W. Bricker asserting it balanced estimated revenues and cut $10,000,000 from 1937-38 expenditures, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley saw little hope in the budget for the solution of Mansfield's relief problem.

For poor relief the budget sets up a state appropriation of $9,250,000 a year which it is understood would have to be matched on a 50-50 basis by the cities.

Under Estimate.

This would make available a total of $18,500,000 a year for relief, $5,500,000 under the minimum estimate made by State Relief Auditor O. P. Van Schoik.

"I can't see that making available funds on a matching basis will help us solve our relief problem here," Kelley asserted, "unless enabling legislation is passed to provide new money."

H declared that the city, which already is more than $20,000 in debt, faces a hopeless task in its relief problem unless the state authorizes transfer of funds to provide money for matching purposes.

Bricker Claims Saving.

The budget was the largest single appropriation proposal ever placed before an Ohio assembly because it previously was the legislature's practice to approximate separately for such purposes as old age pensions and state aid for local schools, two items which account for considerably more than half the total.

Summarizing his budget before a joint legislative session last night, Governor Bricker contended it represented a saving of nearly $10,000,000 on this basis:

1. That it totaled $730,000 less than actually paid out of the state treasury during the 1937-38 administration of former Gov. Martin L. Davey.

2. That the Davey administra-

OK'S WARSHIPS

Roosevelt Approves Plans for 45,000-Ton Battleships.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt has approved navy plans for construction of 45,000-ton battleships, the White House revealed today.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early would not state how many 45,000-ton dreadnaughts were proposed for construction. However, it was believed that two have been approved by the president and that funds for them would be sought from this congress.

The president's approval was given orally to Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations. It was based on information that foreign powers were laying down war vessels in excess of 35,000 tons.

City Puts Up $35,000 for Two Swim Pools; Gets Part of One.

CAMBRIDGE—(AP)—Mayor Homer Sherrard wants to know what happened to most of the $35,000 put up by the city as its share for two Works Progress administration swimming pools and other improvements.

With only one pool 20 per cent completed, Sherrard said federal funds had become exhausted and that only $1,500 of the city's money was left. An audit has been ordered.

Capital Puts Up White Flags As Troops March In

BULLETIN

MADRID—(UP)—Victorious Gen. Francisco Franco broadcast over the Madrid radio today a promise of full pardon for all Republican soldiers not guilty of crimes.

(By Associated Press)

MADRID—Weary Republican Madrid surrendered to triumphant Nationalist Spain today and the savage civil war which frightened Europe for nearly three years was all but over.

White flags of surrender, mingled with Nationalist emblems, broke out through the city early today as leaders of the national defense council fled.

Not a shot was fired when listless soldiers of the beaten Republican regime laid down their arms.

Capitulation in the conflict which lasted two years and eight months and cost uncounted hundreds of thousands of lives came on orders of Col. Adolfo Prada, the Republican army's new commander. Gen. Jose Miaja, "Savior of Madrid," and his war minister, Segismundo Casado, had gone to Valencia.

It seemed certain that no attempt at resistance would be made.

An estimated 60,000 jubilant Fascists celebrated in the streets of this city which had been under siege since Nov. 6, 1936. In these same streets hundreds had been killed in intermittent artillery and air bombardments.

Madrid's famous "fifth column"—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's sympathizers who risked their lives to spy for him during the war—came into the open.

Dance, Sing In Street.

Released from the strain of war, people rushed frantically about the streets, dancing and embracing each other. They sang and shouted in scenes of wild enthusiasm.

Nationalist troops by noon had not formally taken over the center of the city. Here the hungry populace they had bombed and bombarded for nearly two and one-half years waited to cheer them.

General Franco was expected to make a triumphal entry into Madrid after "cleanup operations." He may come Saturday.

Disarmed Republican soldiers—who had seen Franco gradually take over three-fourths of Spain in a campaign which saw few Republican victories and came to a climax with the fall of Barcelona Jan. 26—streamed back into the city from deserted fronts.

With the surrender—which followed long and secret negotiations with Franco by the Republican defense council—the old red and yellow Monarchist flag which flew under King Alfonso was seen everywhere.

Placed on Skyscraper.

The flag was hoisted atop the 14-story Telefonica building, the shell-pitted skyscraper which is Madrid's tallest and perhaps best known structure.

Prada succeeded Casado as commander when the latter became a national defense councilor.

Soon after the surrender the streets were full of Republican soldiers who had abandoned their weapons in the trenches which have protected Madrid for more than two years.

All Republican flags had disappeared and instead Nationalist flags were flying from staffs.

Roads out of the city were jammed with fugitives.

Republican banknotes were being refused in the shops, and many persons in the streets were giving the Nationalist salute.

HISTORY: Bitter Factional Struggle Started War In July '36

(By Associated Press)

The Spanish war broke out July 18, 1936, in Spanish Morocco and quickly spread to the mainland, where seeds had been sown for years in bitter struggle between Rightist and Leftist factions. Leftists had just won control of Cortes (Spanish parliament) and established a popular front government. Conservatives, Fascists, Monarchists and most of the army joined the revolt.

Because of its sharply-drawn ideological character, the war immediately threatened to inflame Europe. On Sept. 9, 27 nations organized the international committee for non-intervention.

Italy and Germany helped the Nationalists with men and materials; Russia similarly helped the Republicans and France was accused of aiding them by permitting supplies to pass through her territory.

The Nationalists, with only minor setbacks, steadily advanced. Strong first in the southwest and west, they successively won control of the north, northwest, part of the south and finally Catalonia in 30 months of warfare, leaving the Republicans in control of about one-fourth of the country, located around the Madrid-Valencia-Ali-

LONDON: Britain Waits On Important Talk by Chamberlain

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today that the government was "actively continuing their negotiations with other governments" on measures to keep Adolf Hitler from further aggression.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlin will make an important statement in the house of commons this afternoon coincident with the departure of two of Great Britain's army chieftains to inspect the Maginot defense line in France.

The nature of Chamberlain's statement was kept a close secret pending its delivery.

Chamberlain arranged with Arthur Greenwood, labor leader, to provide a basis for the statement Greenwood will ask him in the commons for the latest information on the international situation.

It was assured that the statement would not announce that plans for a "stop Hitler" declaration had been successful.

There were reports that Chamberlain might, however, reply to Poland's demand for concrete assurances of assistance for any participation it understood in an anti-aggression pact.

As regards the "stop Hitler" plan, it was understood that Great Britain sent new proposals to interested powers last night.

Pending the prime minister's statement diplomatic quarters saw as a most important international development the "trade" conference ended at Moscow last night.

An official Russian communique disclosed that R. S. Hudson, British secretary of the overseas trade department, had not only discussed British-Russian trade with Russian leaders but had had a special conference with Premier Vlacheslav Molotov in which the general European situation was discussed.

Seek To Prevent Retroactive Tax On State Workers

BACK CLAIMS 'UNFAIR,' SAYS SENATE GROUP

Supreme Court Ruling Paves Way to Levy Against 1939 Pay of State Employes.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The supreme court decision stripping state and federal employes of income tax immunity brought demands from senators today for legislation to prevent retroactive taxation of state workers.

It would be unfair, some senators said, for the treasury to assert back claims against 2,600000 state and local employes. They said states could impose back taxes on the 1,200,000 federal workers, but predicted this would not be done.

The general expectation was that the first federal tax would be levied on the 1939 incomes of state employes.

Roosevelt Upheld.

The 6 to 2 court ruling, handed down yesterday, supported President Rosevelt's contention that an amendment to the constitution was not necessary to permit the government and the states to tax each other's salaries. It reversed opinions which had stood for more than half a century.

In the past, the federal government has imposed income taxes only on its own workers and states have taxed only state employes. Officials said 33 states had income tax laws.

Some legislators said the decision undoubtedly would be broadened in a future case to lift the exemptions from interest on state and federal bonds.

"If you can tax the salaries, you can tax the securities," said Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.) "I feel confident the court will so rule."

Statistics gathered by Senator Brown (D-Mich) showed that the federal government could collect about $16,000,000 in income taxes from state employes each year. State collections from federal employes would depend on rates imposed by the various legislatures.

Some states now specifically exempt federal workers from their income levies, and treasury authorities said they assumed these laws would be amended in order to take advantage of the court decision.

The removal of immunity will not affect many federal and state workers, because their salaries are less than the basic exemptions granted in tax laws. Officials believed, however, that aside from these exceptions all persons on public payrools would be affected, except possibly federal judges. Some authorities contended that the constitutional provision against diminishing the salaries of judges would prevent their being taxed.

A house-approved bill providing for reciprocal federal-state taxation of employes' salaries is pending before the senate.

Rainmaker Scores And Gets a Check; Weatherman Scoffs

FROSTPROOF, Fla.—(INS)—A real estate company was so grateful for the showers that ended a damaging drought in the citrus growing section of Florida that it announced today it would send a check to Miss Lillie Stoate, 67-year-old Mississippi spinster who claimed her powers brought the rain.

But from other sources—notably the U. S. weather bureau at Jacksonville—doubts were expressed that the rains came as the result of Miss Stoate's rainmaking efforts.

Miss Stoate, however, stoutly refuted the weather bureau's assertion the rains last night were caused by "an ordinary spring disturbance." Miss Stoate last night advised citrus growers she could bring rain, and she did, she insisted, by sitting with her umbrella a few hours each day since last Friday beside a large body of water.

Fred Peebles, attorney for a Dendin, Fla., real estate company, said:

"We don't know what power she has or whether she has any stuff on the ball, but the results are okay. We are sending Miss Stoate a check."

Richland Workers Seek Compensation for Injuries.

Richland county workers filed 125 injury claims with the Ohio Industrial commission in February but the county had no fatal accidents during the month.

Two of the claims reported permanent partial disability of the worker, and 20 workers reported over seven days lost time due to their injuries. The total time lost by county workers was 4,779 days.

Up and Down THE STREET

A "thrill" that doesn't ordinarily come with a chocolate sundae was accorded customers at the Isaly Dairy store, West Fourth and Mulberry, at 7:30 p. m. yesterday. There came a crash and splintering of glass. Everyone jumped and were amazed to see a big truck parked where the window had been. A Columbus driver told police that he had parked his vehicle at a filling station on the opposite corner, that the brakes had let go and the machine careened diagonally across the intersection, crashing into the store window.

Sixteen members of the Mansfield Nature club were still wondering today what happened to the lunch they were to have had Sunday night, and more specifically, to H. M. Spandau who was to have had charge of the lunch. After a tour through the hills of southern Richland and Ashland counties, the club members planned to have dinner in a cabin near Loudonville with Spandau as the "chef." But he didn't show up, and the hungry would-be picnickers had to come home for their dinner.

It's never too late to learn. That may be an old adage, but Harvey (Pop) Rantz, 193 Sycamore street, believes in it implicitly. He went along with a group of employes from the Art Rattan works to a roller skating party at the Coliseum last night, and was persuaded to try his hand—or should we say feet?—at the sport. Despite the fact that it was the first time in his 63 years that he had ever been on roller skates, he thinks it's a pretty thrilling sport. He took only one "spill," and that wasn't a very bad one.

The late Diamond Jim Brady, one of the most fabulous eaters of all times, didn't have a lot on Mansfield's Bert Kuhn, at that. And consider the difference in their circumstances! At a party the other evening Bert started out with several portions of shrimp salad and in due time he consumed 24 oysters—big ones—on the half shell, then one jumbo frog, followed by a whole lobster. This, of course, doesn't include the "incidentals." When all of the other guests were completely stalled by the time the lobster was served, Bert cleaned his up to the last claw.

ENDS OWN LIFE

John Martinitz Was Operator of Bucyrus Bakery.

BUCYRUS — John Martinitz, operator of the city's largest bakery, was found dead in the office of his downtown shop early today of self-inflicted knife wounds.

The body was found by police after an alarm had been sounded by Miss Bessie Richley, an employe. Miss Richley, who reports for work at 3 a. m., found the office light on and the door locked.

Martinitz, a native of Germany and about 55, had slashed arteries at his elbows and ankles, according to Coroner R. O. Kackley of Galion. He was dead when found.

Workers said that Martinitz ordinarily went to work at 2 a. m. and that he had eaten his breakfast at a downtown restaurant at 1:30 a. m.

He made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Harold Bosse, who assisted in the management of the business. At noon today no report had been made on the cause for the suicide, nor had funeral arrangements been made.

VOTES TODAY ON OHIO 'RED' QUIZ

Senate 'Showdown' on Request for Dies Inquiry Due; Parole Board 'Ripper' Up.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A highly controversial resolution inviting federal investigation of reported subversive activities in the state and a proposal to reorganize the parole board went on the senate floor for a vote today.

The resolution asking the Dies congressional committee to investigate alleged dissemination of un-American doctrines in Ohio came up as a special order of business, after action was postponed last week because of unexpected and strenuous opposition.

Sponsored by Sen. R. A. Pollock (R., Stark) the resolution was offered as a substitute for an earlier proposal to create a special senate committee for an inquiry into charges by a group of patriotic societies that subversive forces were threatening the state's welfare.

The bill revamping the state parole system would abolish the present four-member board and set up instead a three-member commission. It would oust from their $6,000-a-year jobs of Mrs. Myrna Smith, secretary to Martin L. Davey when he was governor, and other Davey appointees.

An administration sponsored measure, the parole board bill was virtually assured of speedy passage by the dominantly-Republican senate.

Legislative action was practically completed last night on reorganization of the conservation division when the house passed the measure, previously approved by the senate. Minor amendments on the house floor necessitate the bill's return to the other branch for concurrence.

The measure replaces the present conservation council with a commission which is given power to select the conservation commissioner, now appointed by the governor and director of agriculture.

LAY TRIP PLANS

Senior Hi-Y Group To Visit State Institution April 12.

Arrangements for two events were made at a meeting of the Senior Hi-Y club last night at the Y. M. C. A.

Plans were completed for a tour of the State Institution for Feeble-minded in Columbus, April 12, during the spring vacation of the public schools.

Preliminary plans for the annual meeting with the Blue Tri were made but no date was set. H. D. Bishop, advisor of the club, addressed the group on the subject, "Feeble-mindedness."

ADVOCATES RECREATIONAL PLAN FOR 'ALL AGES, ALL CLASSES'

Broader and more diversified recreational programs made possible through the expansion and development of public park systems was advocated by Arthur H. Alexander, chief of the division of landscaping for the city of Cleveland, here last night.

Speaking before nearly 100 members of the Mansfield Public Parks association at their second annual banquet at North Lake park pavilion, Alexander advocated city-wide recreation for "all ages and classes."

"Today the recreational program must be an over all job," the speaker said.

"Recreation is so diversified that it is necessary to expand our parks and develop them to provide programs that will interest everyone."

Alexander asserted that in most cities today there were too few swimming pools and playgrounds.

He told his audience that swimming facilities should be provided on the basis that three per cent of the people swim at one time.

"The need for playgrounds is increasing annually and all parks grounds should be preserved to provide play centers for future generations," he added.

He said the ideal city has one acre of playground for every 1,000 population.

William J. Russell, manager of engineering at the Mansfield plant of Westinghouse told the group that the development of the public parks was a "good investment" in that they provided a curb on juvenile delinquency.

"Look at your parks and playgrounds as an investment," Russell said. "If you don't spend your money for them you'll still have to pay for it in another form—taxes to keep up reform schools and penitentiaries."

Russell termed the public playgrounds' "character builders' through the supervised recreational programs.

"The parks of the country are a spot of Democracy where people of all classes meet on a common ground and rub shoulders."

Following the dinner, Toastmaster Edward Wiley introduced Mayor Claude M. Hunter who presented the W. C. "Bill" Mead trophy to Gordon Watson, president of the Liberty Park association, winners of the annual card tournament for the second successive year. Liberty park needs one more victory to gain permanent possession of the trophy.

Other guests at the banquet were members of the city Board of Park commissioners, city and county officials and WPA recreational leaders.

WIDOW OF CIVIL WAR VET DIES

Loudonville Woman Dies 4 Days Before 89th Birthday.

LOUDONVILLE—Mrs. Lorena Wilson, 88, lifelong resident of Loudonville, died early today at her home following a lingering illness. Mrs. Wilson would have celebrated her 89th birthday anniversary Saturday.

Mrs. Wilson was the widow of Thomas Wilson, a Civil War veteran, and is survived only by a nephew, Earl Weirick.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday at the T. B. Gilbert funeral home with Rev. David Railsback, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. Burial will be in the Loudonville cemetery.

UNION ENVOYS BAR NEWSMEN AT CONVENTION

Rumors of Factional Dispute Heard as 'Secrecy' Order Comes From Delegates.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Visitors and newspapermen were barred today from the convention of the CIO wing of the United Automobile Workers of America during the address of Philip Murray, CIO vice president.

The delegates themselves voted the exclusion of the press, visitors, and representatives from unions other than the UAW-CIO.

It was believed the action of the convention in going into closed "executive session" was to permit Murray to make an effort before the entire group to spike factional difficulties that have cropped up.

Sessions Start Late.

Acting president R. J. Thomas announced as the convention session opened this morning, more than a half hour behind schedule, that Murray was on hand to address the delegates.

Thomas then said it had been suggested the convention go into executive session and that all persons except delegates and the representatives of other unions, be asked to leave.

Thomas said there had been "some disagreement on some things among the delegates."

He called for a voice vote. Numerous "nay" votes were heard, but the proposal carried. Thomas then ruled that the exclusion should not apply to the alternate delegates.

Shortly after the guests and press representatives left the hall, Murray entered, accompanied by Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothier Workers of America, and other CIO leaders.

The CIO group has been at the sidelines of the convention attempting to prevent an open split developing from the factional contest over the forthcoming union election and other disputed points.

OPPOSES BILL

Sword Protests Plan to Divert Road Funds for Relief.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword was in Columbus today to join other highway officials in opposing the passage of an administration bill which would divert motor vehicle license funds to the state relief fund.

Contending that diversion of the license funds would seriously hamper the county's road program, Sword was to submit his protest at a house committee hearing this morning.

He pointed out that the county receives a large part of its road money from the state motor license fees and that to use them for relief would force the county to abandon its WPA road and bridge projects and throw more men back on relief.

The county has received nothing yet this year from the 1939 license fee receipts, although it recently got $14,695 as the balance of its share of 1938 collections.

FAIR ENOUGH!

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON—Old Man Garner, that Old Man Garner, he don't say nothin', but he keeps on growing in the political consciousness of the national capital and of the nation-at-large as a candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1940, possibly with Jim Farley in the two spot.

Now, if you ask me the mail address of the political consciousness of the national capital and of the country-at-large, I have to say that it is just something that I made up.

But let me ask you if you haven't heard — and perhaps thought—a great deal about Mr. Garner these last few months, and if he hasn't been impressed on your political consciousness as a conservative Democrat, distinctly on the rugged and picturesque side, an opponent of extravagance, emontionalism and flippancy, and a symbol of government by professionals as distinguished from book-taught amateurs.

True, Mr. Farley himself has said that any politician of the Democratic party who openly seeks the nomination before President Roosevelt has had his say must be out of his mind. But that is just it. Mr. Garner has not openly invited the nomination.

That is being done for him, unintentionally, perhaps, through suggestion in the newspaper coverage out of Washington. If people reading about him think he is their man, he is.

Mr. Garner is a Cactus Cal Coolidge, whose very silence against portions of the New Deal becomes more thunderous each day while other men in open opposition to the administration waste their effect in small bleats.

Old Man Garner's silence is interpreted as both protest and loyalty to the president and contributes to his growth on both counts. But, of course, while the president is making decisions—and, if you think so, mistakes—for home consumption and for the export trade as well, Old Man Garner, the silent kibitzer, don't say nothin'.

What has he got besides those eyebrows and a still tongue in his head?

Well, he is a country banker with long experience both in business and in politics. He rocks along with people. He goes to bed after supper and gets up at some awful hour of the morning. He knows plenty about legislation and government.

What else are you wanting, because this just about spells him out and he has come along to the position that he now occupies in the field mainly on orthodoxy, simplicity, silence and, of course, party regularity. After all, it doesn't take much, you know. Worse men have made it.

And why then is he being talked up as a presidential candidate? Maybe you had better ask yourself that, because it is the likes of you who are talking him up. There is no mechanical boom, but everything about Old Man Garner points an appeal to the business man, especially the little one, and the home-owning and life insurance types.

Radical labor wouldn't like him, but the A. F. of L. kind might think that a banker and business man of long service in government would give business a chance to make a dollar and hire some men. He would try, anyway, and he would certainly have no truck with men who say that the capitalistic system is doomed and might better be destroyed and replaced now than later.

And in foreign relations he probably would aim to keep his emotions under his scalp and not worry too much about the democracy of Britain and France so long as ours was let alone.

Maybe you wouldn't care for him. That's all right. I am not trying to sell you a bill. I am just trying to count Mr. Garner up and see why he is coming along without having said aye, yes or no.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The big bad villain lives on a hill. It's a beautiful hill, and from the living room you can look through the big window and take in miles and miles of haze-covered Southern California scenery.

If you blot out the lower right-hand corner of the view you won't see the big hangar-like sound stages of Warner Brothers studios. And if you want to get away from it all (motion pictures) it's just your own fault if you let the WB hangars spoil things.

I'm up here at Alan Dinehart's investigating the private life of a villain. I'm sitting on a downy couch devastating a bowl of popcorn and listening to the profound philosophies of National Defense shared by the redoubtable Dinehart and his pretty young wife.

It's soon apparent that, villain though he be, Dinehart isn't an Ism fancier. Neither is his wife—and I honestly don't believe the villain beat her into meek accord with his own views on Americanism. In fact, for a villain, the Dinehart fellow lets the little woman speak her pieces quite freely.

Looking around the room all this time, I can't find any evidence that Alan Dinehart is other than a conventional movie villain. There's a nice grandfather clock in the corner, and a piano (they're both musical) and many shelves of books, and good paintings. There's a dog named Mr. Wu (or is it Poo?) and the picture is complete when young Mason Dinehart, a curly-haired bright little tyke toddles in to meet the company, duly shakes hands, snitches a bit of popcorn, and toddles out again. Ye complete move villain: he loves children, dogs, books, flowers, art, music and—of course—his wife.

But Mrs. Dinehart (who's Mozelle Brittone on stage and screen) insists that Alan has one villainous trait he cannot down. It seems that once in a movie he played a villain who wandered through stationery stores with sticky fingers. To this day (accuseth the villain's wife) her good spouse has not forgotten. Let him but get near a stationery store, and his fingers begin to itch. He walks past the counters and—well, it's called kleptomania in polite circles. Nothing serious, you understand. Just paper clips and rubber bands and similar trivia, and I'm sure he makes amends later.

A little sheepishly The Red Shadow admits his crime. (I'm calling him The Red Shadow because a villain ought to have a name.) He can't explain it, either. He says it's not because he made that picture under von Sternberg or some other artistic director who made enough takes to instill the taking habit in his actor. He says it's just the way it is, and he's sorry and all that.

Villains do have griefs, however. Mozelle's mother, for instance, dreaded having her daughter marry that awful person. She couldn't figure how her little girl could be happy with a man who was so wicked on the screen. After the marriage, when the bridal couple visited the folks, Mozelle's mamma still was timorous—until she met the villain and found he really didn't beat children.

CHURCH GUILD ELECTS MRS. WOLFORD HEAD

Other Officers Will Take Over Duties In United Presbyterian Organization; Paper Given By Miss McFarland.

MRS. KARL WOLFORD was elected president of the United Presbyterian church guild yesterday evening, when members of that organization met at the home of Mrs. Leonard Ebbert, 236 Walter avenue. Miss Maude Stewart served as associate hostess for the meeting.

Mrs. Frank Leavitt, retiring president of the guild, conducted the business session when other officers elected, besides Mrs. Wolford, were Hugh Rust, vice president; Mrs. Lawrence McIntyre, secretary, and Miss Martha McFarland, treasurer.

Mrs. Rust was in charge of the devotions last evening, and Miss McFarland presented a paper on "Negro Music." Misses Martha Kindle and Helen Brown, Mrs. Richard Parsons and Mrs. Wilbur Wierman were guests of the guild for the meeting. The time and place of the guild's next meeting have not yet been announced.

Elect Officers Of Shrine Club At Grotto Hall

Following an afternoon of cards and a 6 o'clock supper served by Mrs. Nellie Phipps and her committee at Grotto hall yesterday, Mrs. Sarah Ford was elected worthy high priestess of the Naomi Shrine, and Gerald Lombard, of Crestline, was named watchman of the shepherds.

Other officers are Mrs. Mary McFadden, noble prophetess, A. Milton Dye, associate watchman of the shepherds; Miss Thelma Hursh, worthy chaplain; Mrs. Isa Boughton, worthy scribe; Mrs. Ethel Hedrick, worthy treasurer; Mrs. Thelma Hartman, worthy guide.

These officers will be installed April 24 in a formal service at the hall. A dinner at the First Methodist Episcopal church will precede the ceremony. Last night seven candidates were inducted with full ritualistic work.

Present Skit at Club Supper Held Last Night

Last night Miss Lois Traxler and Bruce Paessler presented the skit, "Gertie's Hat Shop" at the dinner meeting of the Lumbermens Girls' club which was held at the "cottage." Miss Marguerite Koerper, program chairman, introduced Miss Traxler and Mr. Paessler following the supper which was served by Miss Gertrude Stover, chairman of the hospitality committee.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Louise Wolfe, president, who also won the Chinese checkers prize. Walter Jordan presented a travelogue on Mexico at the conclusion of the program.

Despite expanding tobacco production in Empire colonies, British importations of the American leaf reached a new high in 1938.

Arrange Final Session To Be Held Next Month

Members of the Victorian club will meet for their final session of the year on April 10 at the Women's Club, with Mrs. Victor Smith and Dr. Adda Liffring serving as hostesses. The affair will be a luncheon meeting followed by a panel discussion, in which Mrs. Charles G. Brown, Mrs. Paul F. Cropper, Mrs. John W. Graham, Mrs. C. W. Jelliff and Mrs. D. W. Peppard will participate.

Mrs. R. S. Gibson received guests at yesterday's meeting of the club at the Women's club in the absence of the hostess, Mrs. R. E. Hutchison. During the afternoon Mrs. Roscoe Gage presented a paper on the Women's and Children's bureau of the Department of Labor, with Mrs. John Finefrock assisting her. The theme of the club's programs for this past year has been the study of some of the departments of the national government, and yesterday's paper was the concluding one of the series.

Tea was served at the conclusion of the program, with Mrs. C. H. Huston and Mrs. Mark Wolcott presiding at the table, which was centered with a bouquet of tulips and jonquils.

Nominate Pair To Fill Tent Posts

Mrs. Iva Ish was nominated vice-president and Mrs. Ethel Metz was nominated for the post of chaplain last night at the regular meeting of the Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans which was held at Memorial hall. These two women will fill vacancies left by illness.

The routine and ritualistic business meeting, during which Mrs. Eva Mitchell and Mrs. Sarah Reynolds were initiated, was conducted by the president, Mrs. Essie Mae Miller. A social hour followed with games and a luncheon served by Mrs. Fannie Nail and her committee.

The contest prize was awarded to Miss Viola Wolfgang.

Members will meet in regular session again April 10, and the annual inspection of the order will be conducted April 24.

Study Group Members Talk on Accessories

"Accessories and Jewelry" were the topics for discussion last evening when members of the Consumer Purchasing Study group of the American Association of University Women met at the home of Mrs. Gladys Lane, Park Avenue west.

The Misses Florence Robison, Alice Bower, Edith Beck and Emily Palmer presented the papers of the evening. During the business session, the group made plans for the next regular meeting of the A. A. U. W. on April 18, when they will be in charge of arrangements. The next meeting of the study group will be with Mrs H P. Huston, Sturges avenue, on April 17.

Glee Club Concert Tickets Go On Sale Today

In order to be ready today for the opening of the sale of tickets for the appearance of the Capital university glee club in the Mansfield Senior high school auditorium on the evening of April 21, Mrs. Charles Kuntz, left, and Mrs. Gilbert Schneider, who is chairman of the sales committee, were busy last night going over the program and getting tickets ready for distribution when The News-Journal photographer dropped in on them. The appearance of the glee club is being sponsored in Mansfield by the local branch of the American Association of University Women for the benefit of their $5,000 scholarship fund.

Committees For Mothers' Day Named By Sorority President

COMMITTEES on arrangements for the Mothers day breakfast which will be held early in May were appointed last night by Miss Maxine Jones, president, when members of Delta Theta Tau sorority met with Miss Louise Palmer, West First street, for a business session.

The place will be chosen by the Misses Dorothy Hamaker and Helen Bunn. Flowers and floral arrangements will be planned by the Misses Alvina Wappner and Louise Palmer, and the Misses Virginia Anderson and Helen Widders and Mrs. Clifford A. Faust will arrange the program.

Discussion of other business followed, and arrangements were made to hold a social meeting April 3. Mrs Ernest Geiger, Miss Hamaker and Miss Harriett Roth are in charge and the location of the party will be announced later.

Class Member Tells of Scouting Troop Events

At the meeting of the Daughters of Ruth class of St. Luke's Lutheran church yesterday, Mrs. Richard Fensch spoke on scouting, and showed pictures of her Girl Scout troop. Mrs. Earl Schuler, 151 North Walnut street, was the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Andrew Herring, and she served refreshments at the close of the meeting from a table decorated with pink and white appointments.

Miss Sarah Krumm was in charge of the business meeting, and Mrs. Harry Krumm led the devotions. During the afternoon members sewed for the Mothers Home circle. Kathryn Ann Fensch was the only guest present.

The next meeting of the class will be held April 17 at the home of the Misses Arta Cairns and Bertha Harshman on Rowland avenue. Miss Mary Beilstein and Miss Clara Cassel will be in charge of the program and devotions.

Play Five Hundred at Home of Mrs. Darling

Five hundred was played last night when members of the Busy Bee club met at the home of Mrs. Glenn Darling, Cline avenue, for a social affair. The hostess served refreshments, and prizes were won by the Misses Retamae Zimmerman, Jean Robinson and Cora Weimer.

Miss Zimmerman presented several arcobatic dances and guitar numbers, Miss Weimer played the piano and Miss Doris Roth gave three vocal solos with Miss Mary Tingley at the piano. The next meeting will be April 3 with Miss Zimmerman, R. D. 4.

Reformatory Superintendent Talks At Country Day School

ARTHUR L. GLATTKE, superintendent of the Ohio State Reformatory, was the guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Country Day school Parent-Teacher association last evening at the school, 30 Blymyer avenue.

During his talk, Mr. Glattke summed up the various causes of crime and the agencies that have contact with the men in his institution. He also reviewed the vocational training given the inmates at the reformatory.

John W. Graham, president of the association, was in charge of the business session, after which members of the Wednesday Study club presented a marionette show. The show was entitled, "The Tell-Tale Slipper" and was under the direction of Mrs. Harry Cave, Mrs. Henry Sanford, Mrs. J. C. Wilson and Miss Florence Wagner.

M. K. Leggett, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, announced during the meeting that the annual fair for the parents and their friends would be an event of May 12. Wesley Carr, chairman of the program committee, also announced that Miss Maybelle Brown of the Hathaway-Brown school of Cleveland would address the meeting of the group on May 1.

Miss Edna Horning Has Little Flower Meeting

Yellow daffodils centered the table at which a covered-dish dinner was served to members of the Little Flower Study club last night when Miss Edna Horning, West First street, entertained. The paper of the evening was the review of "Trending Into Maine" by Kenneth Roberts.

Mrs. V. H. Lodde will read "Susan and God," the three-act comedy, at the next meeting it was announced last night. The session will be a guest party at which Mrs. Frank Mahoney, 403 Sherman place, will be hostess. The date is April 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Touby, Helen avenue, who left Mansfield about a week ago for an extended trip to Tampa, St. Petersburg and Key West, Fla., and Washington, D. C., were at Dalton, Ga., yesterday.

TICKET SALE OPENS FOR CAPITAL CONCERT

A. A. U. W. Members to Sponsor Appearance of Columbus Glee Club Here April 21; Proceeds Will Go to Scholarship Fund.

TODAY marks the beginning of the sale of tickets for the program which the Capital University Glee club of 35 male voices will present here on April 21. This organization is being brought to Mansfield by the Mansfield branch of the American Association of University Women for a scholarship fund. The concert will be presented in the auditorium at Mansfield Senior high school at 8 p. m.

Winning championships is almost a matter of course for the Capital Glee club, because its record includes four major championships in the last seven years. The club, which has been organized for 31 years, won state championships in 1931, 1933 and 1937. They also placed first in a state-wide radio contest in 1937, according to university releases.

Thus backed by a tradition of almost a third of a century and assured of their ranking in comparison with other clubs, the Capital singers concentrate on musicianship. Directed by Prof. Wilbur Crist, former member of the Glee club, a leader in Columbus musical circles and conductor of the Columbus La Scala Opera company, the singers offer a varied program, including sacred, classic, ballad and folk selections. The glee club's varsity quartet will also present a group of numbers as a feature of the program.

Mrs. G. D. Schneider, scholarship chairman of the University Women's organization, is in charge of arrangements for the concert, which is being presented in order to swell the $5,000 scholarship fund which the group is sponsoring. The Misses Leona Miles, Louise Krause, Elizabeth Hainer, Elizabeth Anderson, Virginia Howard and Marianne Springer, Mrs. Charles Kuntz, Mrs. L. C. Baumgardner, Mrs. R. M. Gage and Mrs. R. D. Lindsay are the members of Mrs. Schneider's committee.

Presents Paper On Forms In Music

When members of the study group of the Mansfield Music Study club met at her home, 43 Penn avenue, last evening, Miss Frances Brinkerhoff presented a paper reviewing song, rondo and sonata forms. This talk was illustrated with piano selections of Mendelssohn, Schumann, Beethoven and Mozart, played by Mrs. George W. Hall.

Miss Jane Foltz will be in charge of the program for the April meeting of the group at her home on West First street, when symphonies will be the topic for discussion. The next regular meeting of the Music Study club will be held on April 3 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Members of the Junior Music Study club will be in charge of the program at that time. The study group is also making plans for choral program to be presented in May.

Farewell Party Given to Departing Coupe

Approximately 75 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Albro and Mrs. Mary Muth honored them with a farewell party at their home on the Marion avenue road last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Albro are moving to their farm two miles south of Little Washington on April 1.

The group played card games and contests during the evening, after which refreshments were served. The couple also received a farewell gift from their guests.

—Advice— Independent Attitude Won

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I was 23 years old I began a friendship with a man of 25, and we went together "steady" for two years. I was deeply in love with him and he seemed to return my affection, but never mentioned marriage. I thought this was strange and gave him all the chance in the world to speak, but he was very skillful in dodging the issue.

This hurt my pride so I made up my mind to act. I started going with another set of young people—girls and boys who did not know my boy friend. At first it was hard to take an interest in them, as I always thought of the first boy. Gradually I began to like a certain young man, and before I knew it, it was more than just liking.

Out of a clear sky came objections from the first young man. He had found out I was going with someone else. If I had been married to him, he couldn't have made any more fuss about my going out with my new friend. Then I said:

"You have no right to object, since we aren't engaged."

The word engaged calmed him down, and since he didn't want to talk about that word, we said "goodbye," and I have not seen him since. However, I've become engaged to the second man, and am very happy.

Perhaps this letter might give other girls similar ideas should they find themselves in my situation. MARGARET.

What an interesting letter, and you have my congratulations on your good sense, Margaret. There are more men like this one, who think nothing of singling out a girl, paying her a great deal of attention, and then dropping her. Of course, such an arrangement is all right if both parties understand it to be just a pleasant comradeship, in which each is absolutely free to have other friends.

But when a man assumes the privileges of a fiance, goes into jealous rages when a girl goes out with someone else, he is exceeding his rights. I'm glad you were independent enough to put an end to it.

When you make your next layer or loaf cake, take out enough batter for four or five cup cakes. Bake them in small pans or paper cups and then save them to put in lunch boxes. Since they keep better than individual pieces of cake.

Fruit pies are likely to "run over" during baking. To prevent the drippings from becoming scorched and leaving a burned odor in the kitchen, place a pan directly under the pie. The pan, which may easily be washed, will catch the drippings.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Then you know—" I gasped.

A look of mischief flashed into her eyes, and she laughed merrily.

"I didn't know, but I do now," she said. Then, as she saw may chagrined expression, her merriment fled.

"Oh! my dear! I didn't mean to trick you," she said. "And I think I really knew after all. Philip is so transparent, poor dear!"

"When do you have to go back?" she asked.

"As soon as possible," I returned. "I must be back in the city by tonight."

There was a long pause, while she mentally computed time and space.

"Then," she said at last, "I suppose we would better put on this 'costume piece' as quickly as possible. How long can you give me before you let him know that you have arranged the interview for him?"

"Will you need more than an hour?" I asked.

"No, that will be ample time," she returned.

"Then I will wait 45 minutes before I telephone," I told her. "It will take at least a quarter of an hour for Otto to drive him over to the farm."

"Then he will not have to wait a minute," she said, and I noted the amused tenderness in her voice. "In the old days he was the most impatient person."

"He still is," I commented. "Now is there anything I can do to help you?"

"You already have helped me in the best possible way," she evaded. "But my daughter is so used to my every whim that I think I would better utilize her skill."

"Shall I call her?" I queried.

"Yes, please." But as I arose her uplifted, protesting hand stopped me.

"It won't do Philip any harm to wait five minutes more," she said smiling.

"Especially since the happiness of a life time will soon be within his grasp," I said, and could have bitten my tongue through for the words, for I immediately saw a look of astonishment tinged with recentment in Olga's eyes.

"What do you mean?" she asked. "Oh! I see. You think I am going to accept Philip's offer."

"But — what — you're not?" I stammered.

"Most certainly not," she said, and her regal head lifted proudly. Then it dropped again, and she looked at me with eyes in which disappointment blended with amusement.

"In the first place," she said, "there is the question of pride to consider. I suppose it is sinful, but it is part of my nature. In the old days mine was so much the greater position that I could not bear it to accept Philip's offer of marriage when I would have to come to him as a pauper, dependent upon him for the very clothing in which I would stand up to be married."

HOROSCOPE

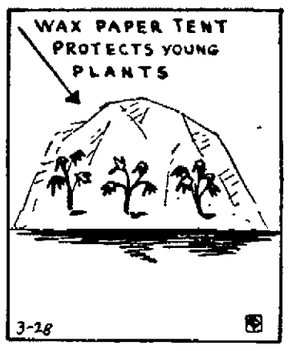
For Wednesday, March 29.

Surprising although very conflicting developments are presaged by the predominant lunar aspects. While there will suddenly arise some excellent opportunity for growth, production, expansion, fulfilled ambitions and personal prestige, there also may be stubborn obstacles to cope with, especially those concerned with papers or writings. In these be alert to deception and loss. With care there may be worthwhile progress.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of surprising benefits. There may be splendid opportunities for personal popularity and business advancement, but there also may be obstructions, opposition, delays and definite troubles, in regard to writings, documents, theft and loss unless particular care be exercised.

A child born on this day may be clever and original, with high ambitions and capabilities. But it may encounter frustrations and suffer also from the actions of its superiors and possibly from its own rather dubious methods. Its early life should be carefully supervised and directed into channels of truth and integrity.

Today's Garden-Graph



Tents for tomato plants.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Young tomato plants, like small boys, like to live in tents. And gardeners have found that paper tents protect tomato plants from insects, birds, rodents, hail and wind storms. Similar tents can also be used to protect young melon and pepper plants.

As illustrated in the above Garden-Graph, tomato tents are made of a thin but strong waxed paper. They resemble inverted baskets, being 11 inches broad at the base and some 9 inches high.

Tents can be placed over the seedlings or the seeds. When the plants grow to the height of the tents, the paper tops are slit two ways to provide openings through which the growing plants can emerge. These paper tents are inexpensive and can be obtained at almost any seed store.

A balloon centerpiece in the middle of the party table appeals to youngsters. Select balloons of different sizes, shapes and colors and tie them to weights which may be placed in a low bowl. The balloons, of course, serve as favors for the youngsters to take home.

Liquid left over from mustard pickles is excellent to mix with chopped meat or fish and use in sandwich fillings.

Dramatic Education

Classes and private lessons in both radio and dramatics, as well as instructions in individual readings, are offered to children of all ages. Classes arranged according to age and maturity. Classes for school children are held after school and on Saturday.

Home-Made Cosmetic Recipes

By MME. QUI VIVE

There are women who are never so happy as when they are mixing up some beautifying magic. They boast about their homemade pulchritude brew. Some formulas are handed down from one generation to another; good looks inheritance, as it were.

Home experiments are all right if the experimenter does not wander far afield. Many cosmetics require a special knowledge of chemistry, proper equipment for mixing.

Following is the formula for a smooth, delightful cold cream, to be used for cleansing and to keep the skin soft. Ask the druggist to weigh the solids carefully; too much of either one will make the emollient too firm.

One ounce of white wax.
One ounce of spermaceti.
Four and one half ounces of oil of sweet almonds.

One and one half ounces of stronger rosewater to which have been added three drops of oil of rose geranium. If you wish to use your own perfume, omit the oil, add your favorite when the mass starts to thicken.

Melt together the first three ingredients. Remove from the fire, add the rosewater, whip with an egg beater until the mass is the consistency of whipped cream; pour into jars.

The older girls will need a nourishing cream for massaging before the sand man comes.

One half ounce of white wax,
One half ounce of spermaceti,
One ounce of cocoanut oil,
One ounce of lanoline,
Two ounces of oil of sweet almonds,

One ounce of orange water with a few drops of oil of lavender flowers added.

Melt together the first five ingredients, remove from heat, add the orange flower water. Fluff with an egg beater until the mass is creamy but not solid. Stop beating while the cream is still soft enough to pour into jars. Keep in a cool place. Apply at night after the face has been washed and wiped thoroughly dry. Use tapping, slapping movements as an insurance against the meanie marks of old Pop Time.

Sprinkle furniture polish on a small dish mop to clean the stairway railing. The dust will adhere to a small mop more easily than to a rag.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

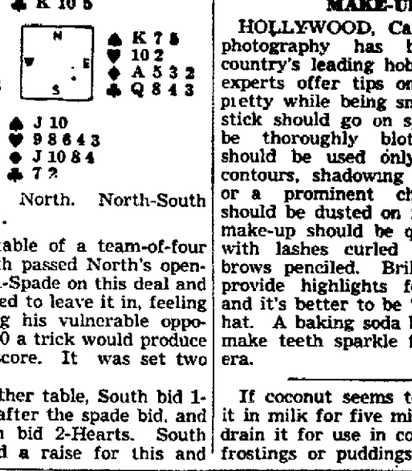
BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GIVE HIM A CHANCE

IF YOU HAVE a partner whose two bids really guarantee a game, and whose original bids of one may therefore be almost as strong as a game guarantee, it will pay you to strain yourself to keep the bidding open once for him in order to hear his second call.

This is especially true if he has bid one of your shorter suits and you may have a much better fit for whatever he bids next.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable).

At one table of a team-of-four game, South passed North's opening bid of 1-Spade on this deal and West decided to leave it in, feeling that setting his vulnerable opponents at 100 a trick would produce a good score. It was set two tricks.

At the other table, South bid 1-No trump after the spade bid, and North then bid 2-Hearts. South felt he had a raise for this and took it to 3-Hearts, which was made by the kind of play that developed. Only one trick was lost in each suit.

It would have been interesting to see how other people would bid this deal, if it had been played at more tables. Most players in the West position would have doubled or bid 1-No trump if South passed the opening bid of 1-Spade. And some North players would have preferred a short-suit minor bid, or No trump, to the four-card major suit.

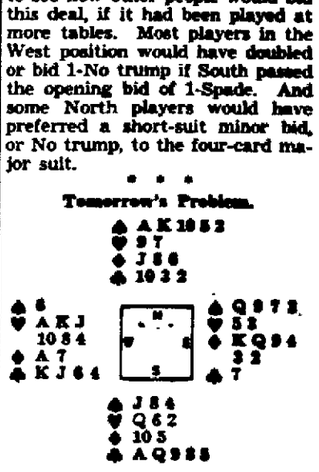
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable).

If West bide 1-Heart, North 1-Spade and East makes a thin double on this deal, what should West then do after South's pass?

MAKE-UP

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Since photography has become the country's leading hobby, make-up experts offer tips on how to be pretty while being snapped. Lipstick should go on sparingly and be thoroughly blotted. Rouge should be used only to correct contours, shadowing square jaws or a prominent chin. Powder should be dusted on faintly. Eye make-up should be quite definite with lashes curled upward and brows penciled. Brilliantine will provide highlights for the hair and it's better to be "shot" minus hat. A baking soda brushing will make teeth sparkle for the camera.

If coconut seems too dry, soak it in milk for five minutes. Then drain it for use in cookies, cakes, frostings or puddings.

His long holdout ended, Joe (Ducky) Medwick, the Cardinals' slugging outfielder, is pictured with Manager Ray Blades, left, at St. Petersburg, Fla. Medwick is believed to have signed for $19,000. He wanted $20,000.

By STEVE SNIDER

CHICAGO — (UP) — Oregon's rangy sharpshooters, new champions of the National Collegiate Athletic association, entered a claim to the national intercollegiate basketball title today and it's as good a claim as any other.

The Pacific coast champions defeated Ohio State's Big Ten title holders last night, 46 to 33, in the finals of the first annual NCAA championships, leaving no doubt of their superiority. They led every minute and only twice was Ohio State within a point of a tie.

How About L. I. U.?

The national championship, however, still is a muddle. Long Island university, victor in Manhattan's invitational tournament, is a popular eastern choice for the title and Southwestern Teachers of Winfield, Kan., won a similar tournament at Kansas City.

Oregon was a good enough team last night to claim any title. A swift-moving offense, manned by player averaging 6 feet, two inches swept over Ohio State's defense before the Bucks could get set. They commanded rebound shots off both boards and Ohio State virtually was helpless.

Capt. Jimmy Hull was the only Ohio State player able to pierce the highly efficient shifting zone defense of the Webfeet. As usual, the Big Ten scoring champion led his mates, but 12 points was the best he could do.

Instead of All-American Laddie Gale, Ohio State had the most difficulty shackling peppery little Bob Anet, Oregon captain, and John Dick, junior member of the Giant front line trio. Dick led the champions with 13 points and Anet scored 10, but his shooting was less troublesome than his alertness and great dribbling. Time after time he broke up Ohio plays and raced down the floor to set up a field goal for a teammate.

Bank on Long Shots.

Oregon was surprisingly fast for such a big team. The Bucks expected to rush the zone defense before it could get set and found that by the time they reached offensive territory the zone already had formed. They could do nothing with it and banked mostly on long shots.

Victor in 14 of its 16 Pacific Coast conference games, the new champions entered the NCAA finals by defeating Texas and Oklahoma's Big Six co-champions with an offensive average of 55½ points. Ohio State won the Big Ten championship with 10 victories and two defeats, then beat Wake Forest and Villanova in the Philadelphia sectional tournament.

Russian Faces Raines Friday

Head This Week's Mat Show in Armory Ring.

Del "Sailor" Raines, wrestling gob and ex-movie star from Los Angeles, Calif., will oppose Leon Grandovitch of Russia in the top event of Friday's mat card in the Armory. The former champion of Uncle Sam's Asiatic fleet was signed yesterday.

Grandovitch and Raines have been signed to grapple for two falls, with a time limit of 90 minutes, to top the Mansfield Quality club's weekly mat offering. Two other contests will be added to the card, with an outside possibility of Whitey Wahlberg, Duluth, Minn., light-heavyweight, being signed for the semi-final.

The first heavyweight ever to score over Frank Sexton here, Grandovitch is currently in the midst of a long winning streak. He has defeated Friederich Von Schacht, Nazi storm trooper, and has wrestled a draw with the dynamic Everett Marshall of La Junta, Colo. Raines, it is believed will give the Russian Panther about all he can handle.

BUDGE, PERRY PLASTERED BY ELLY VINES, PARTNER

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)— Don Budge and Fred Perry headed for the Pacific northwest today for the next stops on their current professional tour after taking a tennis lesson from Ellsworth Vines.

Budge and Perry teamed up in a doubles match here last night against Vines and his fellow Pasadenan, Keith Gledhill and were defeated 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 12-10 Earlier on the same program Budge disposed of Perry 6-0, 6-4.

Yanks Option Six Players

Sends Rookies to Newark, Kansas City Clubs.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(U.P.)—The New York Yankees, who break camp Wednesday, announced option of six players to farm clubs today. Outfielder Walter Judnich and Pitcher George Washburn were sent to the International League club at Newark; Outfielder Bill Matheson and Pitcher Al Piechota to Kansas City of the American Association; Catcher Ken Sears to Norfolk, and Catcher Herb White to Binghamton. The Yanks go to Clearwater today seeking revenge for the 3-2 defeat administered by the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday.

Dad 'n' Son Talk It Over

Here's a Mansfield dad and son bowling combination that is not doing badly on the alleys this season. Mike Meder, left, owner of the Meder Recreation alleys, and his son, Edward (Babe), are shown in the above photo discussing their record scores. Several nights ago in the Moose Home league, Babe established a new season record for his dad's alleys with a 767 total. He collected the mammoth series against his father's team, and the latter came through with a brilliant 748 on the same night. The spectacular totals are all-time highs for both the dad and son.

Liederkranz, Tire Teams Hit Sticks In A. B. C. Tonight

Mansfield bowling teams will make their first bid for honors in this year's American Bowling Congress in Cleveland tonight.

Representing Mansfield on the lakefront alleys on the 11 p. m. shift will be the Mansfield Tires and Liederkranz club. They are scheduled to bowl on alleys 23 and 24.

The Mansfielders will roll in the minor events at 12:40 p. m. Wednesday. The pairings for the two-man event are Henry Michaels, Duke Weber and Bill Donnellan, Harold Selby and Christ Herrick, Bob Hollingsworth and Nick Schmidt, Pete Grohol and Jack Applan, Leroy Wolf and Bill Fenn.

Pitching New Tribe Problem

Staff Doubtful Outside of Feller and Harder.

NEW ORLEANS — (INS) — Reduction of the Cleveland Indians' squad had started today with the assignment of Ray Mack, former Case football star, and Lou Boudreau, University of Illinois product.

The two were assigned to the Buffalo Bisons, where Mack is to be used at second base and Boudreau at shortstop. The stipulation that the two play short and second was considered a long-range attempt by the Cleveland club to solve its infield problem.

Further steps in paring down the team will be undertaken this week by club officials.

Meanwhile, Sammy Hale was apparently rounding into shape better than at any similar period of recent years and Jim Shilling has been performing smoothly at second. With Jimmy Webb and Lyn Lary for the shortstop position, the center of the Tribe infield is no longer Manager Oscar Vitt's big problem.

His big question mark is his pitching staff. Bob Feller and Mel Harder look good, and will head the list of 10 hurlers the club will carry.

From there on in the going is not so good. Johnny Allen's work hinges entirely on the outcome of his recent arm operation. Johnny Humphries still has a speedball, but no curve. Johnny Broaca has yet to demonstrate that he has regained his early form.

There's always Willis Hudlin, but the rest of the possibilities include a flock of youngsters—Al Milnar, Tom Drake, Bill Zuber, Joe Dobson, Paul Sullivan, Floyd Stromme, and Clay Smith.

ASK CHANGE TO HALT INTENTIONAL FOULS

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—National Collegiate Associate basketball coaches asked their rules committee today to approve a rule change to halt intentional fouls. Delegates to the association's annual convention recommended the modification during their three-day session which ended yesterday.

Since rulemakers eliminated the center jump, coaches have noted trailing teams making deliberate fouls to gain possession of the ball after free throws. The proposed change would permit the fouled team to choose between attempting a free throw and taking the ball out of bounds.

CLEVELAND, PROVIDENCE OPEN SERIES TONIGHT

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Winners over Springfield's Indians, the Cleveland Barons tangle tonight with the Providence Stars, victors over Syracuse, in the first game of their best two out of three series.

The first game is scheduled for the arena here, and the second and third, if the latter is necessary at Providence. A move was underfoot here, however, to bring the third game to Cleveland. Winner of the series will meet the victor of the current Philadelphia-Hershey series.

HARRIS PAINTS, WOOSTER, TIE FOR HIGH GAME

CLEVELAND (AP) - Sharpshooting keglers began the 20th day of firing in the 58-day American Bowling Congress tournament today with the Mayrose No. 1 team of Melrose Park, Ill., still perched atop the five-man standings with 3,025.

Bill Larson, 47-year-old Green Bay, Wis., machinist, hit 690 for fourth place in the singles yesterday. The Harris Paints team of Wooster tallied 1,068 last night to tie the leading Mayrose team for high score in a single game.

PLAYOFF GAMES OFF

Class A and C Church league playoff games scheduled for Wednesday night at the Y. M. C. A. have been postponed until next week, Don D. Cram of the Y staff announced today. The playoffs were postponed due to the illness of several players.

Old Diz, Chicago Teammates Form One Big Happy Family

By ROBERT MYERS

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A quieter, more affable gentleman than Mr. Jerome Herman Dean of the Chicago Cubs can't be found in baseball today.

Mr. Dean—yes, Dizzy—just isn't popping off these days. It may be that the Great One is waiting to see whether his $185,000 arm will stand up to much talking, or it may be that Jerome Herman simply finds that his contract with Chicago doesn't demand him to blow off that Gas House steam.

Don't get the idea that Ol' Diz has gone into a dark mood. He hasn't. He and Billy Herman and a rank rookie in camp had Augie Galan weak with laughter during a torrid fielding workout—and Dizzy nearly split his sides when Galan cracked a ball that nearly cracked the Dean left hand.

On and off the field Dizzy and the rest of the Cubs seem to be one happy family. You'll find any one of the boys earnestly hoping that Dean will come back to greatness this season.

Dizzy himself says he thinks his arm is better now than at any time since it developed trouble after that all-star game in 1937, but he won't know for sure about his condition, nor will the rest of the Cubs, until Manager Gabby Hartnett gives him the word to cut loose and really try it out.

"I like playing with Chicago," says Dizzy. "They've been swell to me and I sure hope I can come through this year., I'm in good shape now except I haven't been allowed to do much throwing."

Camp followers believe that if Dizzy can win 15 games he can win 20 or more. If he can't win 15, he might come through with 10—or his contract release.

MR. DEAN, ESQ. . . . rarin' to let go.

Legion Club Spills 2918 In Club League

A 2918 TOTAL by the American Legion club set the scoring pace in the Club league at the Meder alleys last night.

Closing with a big 1015 score, the Legionnaires took two decisions from the J. A. C. club. Brig Young led the Legion club with a 610, and Pete Grohol contributed a 608.

The Liederkranz club was next high in the scoring list with a 2858 count, which, however, was good for only one win over the first place Schoolmasters. Christ Herrick led the Liederkranz club with a 603 total.

Featuring a 245 game, Sonny Meder came through with a 628 as the Page Dairys pounded out a 2738 to take a pair of victories from the Mansfield Savings Bank.

In the other matches, the Optimists, sporting a 2791 count, lost two games to the Commercial Managers, Baku Grotto added three games at the expense of the Kiwanians and the second place Mansfield Athletic club swept its series with the Tracy & Avery club.

Charlie Gimbel High In C League.

CLOSING with a big 225 game, Charlie Gimbel of the Gimbel Confectioners set the scoring pace in the Commercial C league with a 607 total.

Gimbel's total enabled the Confectioners to take two games from the Shaw Jewelers, while Oscar Walters' barbers, chief contenders for first place, dropped two games to Art Rattan.

Deny Sutherland's In Line for Schmidt's Job

By OSCAR RUHL

ATHLETIC officials at Ohio State are denying that Francis Schmidt will be sidetracked in favor of Jock Sutherland . . . but anything can happen if "Frantic Francis" does not satisfy the High street coaches next fall . . . Hollis Pace clicked off a 98x100 score in the St. Pat's trapshoot in Columbus to finish second to Karl Maust, Akron rifle expert . . . Blair Gulbon, Cornell cage coach, was a week-end visitor, then jumped to Chicago for the coaches' meeting . . . Herb Mengard, who will be host to the Ohio State bowling tournament at his Cincinnati alleys this spring, also stopped over on his way to Cleveland and the A. B. C.

Dale Leedy, who patroled the outfield for Dewey Durant's Legionnaires last summer, has been signed by Decatur of the Three-I league . . . Roy Craig finished in a tie with Howard Pry of Shelby in Bill Ferguson's Headpin tournament on the Bordertown alleys last week with a respectable score of 115 . . . R. B. Bliss of Shelby is behind a movement to organize an Inter-city softball league . . . wants two teams from Mansfield . . . And Leo Yuncker is trying to line up the clubs for him.

President Paul Shank of the Ohio State league is planning to arrange the appearance of pilots of the six clubs on the air via WSPD, Toledo, a day or two before the season gets under way. . . . The Dodgers may soon be forced to relinquish the title as the most bizarre club in baseball to the Cleveland Indians. . . . Things have been happening in the tribe's tepee, as you may have read.

MOST of the experts are picking the Indians to finish at the bottom of the first division behind the Red Sox . . . Detroit is boomed as the Yankee's most serious threat. . . . Baseball's highest-priced rookie of the year — Fred Hutchinson — will not be worth a nickel to the Tigers, they're saying . . . He's got courage and control, but not too much stuff . . . Golfing associations are flirting with the hall of fame idea originated by baseball . . . Don't forget Wednesday night's "Fan Night" party at the American Legion . . . No admission charge, you know . . . and there'll be plenty of fun . . . about an hour and a half will be spent showing the latest film releases of the major leagues.

HUTCHINSON . . . flop?

Yankees Good Bet to Repeat

Cincinnati Reds Have Pennant Fever, But Most Observers Believe Club Lacks 'Balance.'

By GAYLE TALBOT

ATLANTA—(AP)—The baseball teams, brown and full of orange juice, are about ready to break camp and head back north, so now is as good a time as any to have a look at the general situation.

First, it seems apparent after visiting 11 teams in Florida and Louisiana that the American league has, if anything, increased its superiority over the National league as a whole, granting for the sake of argument that it is for the time being a stronger circuit.

The Yankees are bound to be better, even with Lou Gehrig playing on a dime at first base, and the only thing that might keep them from winning their fourth straight world championship would be for something to happen either to Lefty Gomez or Red Ruffing, or both. They were making bets around St. Petersburg, incidentally, that Gehrig would be replaced by Babe Dahlgren before the season ends.

Fight for Second.

Both the Boston Red Sox, who finished second to the Yanks last year, and the Detroit Tigers, who finished a fast-coming fourth, appear to have strengthened, too, and my guess is they will fight it out for second place this time.

The Sox have a potential star in their rookie outfielder, Ted Williams, while the Tigers will be sounder at shortstop and third-base and might have great pitching if Schoolboy Rowe and Fred Hutchinson both come through. Cleveland's fortunes admittedly rest in the right arm of Johnny Allen, who had an elbow operation during the winter. If he doesn't make a comeback they could even drop out of the first division.

None of the other four American league clubs, from what I've seen and heard, has made any important improvement, though the Washington Senators could make it tough on the leaders if Bucky Harris should find himself a starting pitcher among all those Cubans.

Cincinnati is the hot club in the National league, the only one that has taken on a load of strength and already is making gestures at the pennant. Will McKechnie's fine young outfit vaulted from last place in 1937 to fourth last year, and there's no law that says they can't jump four more notches this time.

There is the sort of team that might take charge of its league for several years and give the Yankees a real scrap in the world series, to boot. Some observers think the Reds lack "balance." All I know is they have good fielding, fine hitting and a remarkable collection of pitchers, now that Lefty Grissom is back in form. Also they have the pennant bug.

Maybe I wouldn't be so high on the Reds if they were any real reason to believe that their chief rivals will be better than last year, or even as good. The feeling around the South is that the Chicago Cubs, last year's champs, stripped their gears when they let Bill Jurges go to the Giants. One pretty competent baseball man offered to bet, given the proper odds, that the Cubs wouldn't finish in the first division.

Pittsburgh's veteran club probably had its last big chance when it blew the flag in the closing days of the 1938 race after holding what looked like a safe lead. A team that undergoes such an experience seldom snaps back. The Giants will have to be considered a third-place team, at best, until it is seen for sure that Hubbell and Schumacher can win again.

So what's to keep the Reds out of there, providing they get their share of breaks and do not lose their key men by illness or injury; their pitching stand-bys—Johnny Vander Meer, Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Whitey Moore and Grissom—form perhaps the most formidable group in the game, and it looks like they've got two or three others just about as good.

Stack Up Strong.

They have the best catching in their league, Ernie Lombardi and Willard Hershberger. Frank McCormick is, barring Dolph Camilli of Brooklyn, the league's top first baseman. They have a tight infield, now that Bill Werber is on third, and two sweet outfielders in Ival Goodman and Harry Craft.

State Tourney Cage Clubs to Get $40 Bonus

Sott, Beichley in Line for Wesleyan Post.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Glancing around the Ohio sports arena:

The 32 teams which played in the recent high school basketball tourney—won by Akron North and North Canton—get a bonus this year. H. R. Townsend, scholastic athletic commissioner, said each squad would get $40 for each game played in the state classic. Last year's teams received $75—in addition to all expenses.

Statements from the sectional and district meets are still trickling in, Townsend said, and he expects the tourney attendance-cash totals to be delayed until late this week.

Detrick to Goodyear.

The rumor factory is working overtime trying to send Ray Detrick, Ohio Wesleyan university's hot-shot basketball and baseball coach, to Akron Goodyear as athletic director. The job looks like it's in the bag for tow-headed Ray, whose basketball squads have an enviable record at Wesleyan.

Jim Scott, all-sport coach at Grandview High school, near Columbus, is all lined up for the football line coach job at Wesleyan, and there's an outside chance that he'll get the basketball job, too. Russ Beichly, Akron West's coach, also is being considered for the Wesleyan cage berth, should Detrick take over the Goodyear position.

For the first time in years, Ohio will have an honest-to-goodness state interscholastic golf tournament in 1939. It'll be over the new Ohio State university course, May 26-27, and will be 72 holes of medal play. For years the state has had a pair of collegiate champs, with the Ohio conference holding its own tournament and barring its members from that presented by the Ohio Intercollegiate Golf association, which drew its players from Buckeye conference and unattached schools.

Team and individual championships will be decided in the new feature, the team entry fee being $10, and the individual $5. Players from both the Buckeye and Ohio loops, and the unattached institutions, are eligible to compete, and indications are the tourney has the blessing of all.

The Ohio league, however, will continue to name its own champion, having its annual meet carded May 19-20 at Toledo. That one will have plenty of color, for its probable Miss Janet Shock of Denison, state women's champion, will compete, along with Miss Eva Shorb of Massillon—the first two co-eds to get into the play. Miss Shock took part a year ago, after winning 12 of 13 matches against male foes in dual competition.

Starn Can Smile.

Kent State's grid coach, G. D. (Rosy) Starn, opened spring practice with 50 in mbleskins, 17 of them lettermen from last season's fine array. The Golden Flashes meet Lawrence Tech, Hobart, Western Reserve, Baldwin-Wallace, Bowling Green, Findlay, Mt. Union and Heidelberg, and notice is hereby served that Starn is looking for the best team in Kent's history.

WPA PLAYERS, NOTICE

Managers and members of teams in last year's WPA softball league are urged to attend an important reorganization meeting at 68½ North Main street at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Odds Reduced On Armstrong

Welterweight Czar 2 to 1 Favorite Over Day.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Proof that Henry Armstrong, the welterweight czar, no longer is considered unbeatable along Tin Ear alley was offered today when the odds on his fight with Davey Day dropped to 2 to 1 in favor of the champion.

This is a very short price on Henry. He was a more substantial favorite before he licked Barney Ross and Lou Ambers for the welterweight, lightweight titles. There is plenty of Day money and prevailing opinion is that Henry's three years of almost continuous mauling have taken their toll. He is liable to be beaten by Day, a hardy, courageous workman.

Armstrong was a 4 to 1 favorite when he came to town last week. Day had been working out only a couple of days when the price dropped to 3 to 1. Yesterday there was a flock of fresh folding money in evidence, much of it from people who saw Davey cut up Tommy Spiegal out in Pittsburgh and more from chronic short-enders, who think Armstrong is ripe. It is 2 to 1 today.

The lanky Chicagoan has helped too. He looks very good. He is tall for a welter, five feet eight, but he does not fight like most fellows built that way. Instead of standing off and jabbing, he moves in with his hands close to his body and fires away. He is very durable and never has been stopped.

We talked with him yesterday after the cheering session nearly blew the roof off Stillman's during his workout.

"Lookit," he said. "Armstrong has been fighting ten years, about twice a month for the last three years and nobody knows how much before that. All the guys I know say he can't be licked. He probably don't think so himself. That's the time he can get licked and I'll do it."

Just An Old Spanish Custom

There's so many Cuban pitchers in the Washington training camp at Orlando, Fla., that Catcher Rick Ferrell, right, has to top off each day with a dictionary session in English and Spanish. The pitchers are Rene Monteagudo, Al Alexander (alias Alejanro Carrasquel) and Roberto Ortiz.

SUTHERLAND SUCCESSOR NAMES NEW ASSISTANTS

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — Five new assistant football coaches and one holdover from the regime of his predecessor were named today by Coach Charles W. Bowser, successor to Jock Sutherland at University of Pittsburgh.

All of the men were former Pitt players. The lone survivr of Sutherland's departure was Mike Nicksick, backfield assistant for three years. The others were:

ESTELLE LEADS FIELD

Pirates Need Pitching Help

Traynor Seeks Hurlers to Assist Tobin, Bauers.

SAN FRANCISCO — (INS) — You'd think a guy like Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh manager, who sat by helpless and watched his Pirates blow a chance to win the National league pennant last year, would be walking about in a somewhat shell-shocked condition as he supervises the club's spring training at the San Bernardino camp. Well, he isn't.

"I'll admit I was a bit dazed after what the Cubs did to us in those final, hectic days," he laughs. "It was plenty tough to take but I guess you got to be ready to take those kind of breaks. Anyway, this is another year."

You can't induce Traynor to get too enthusiastic about the Pirates this year. Sure, he admits they're going to be tough but he has his worries along with quite a number of other managers as the big league season draws closer.

He needs help in the pitching department. At least one good one, two if possible. Give him two top hurlers and Traynor will pit his club against any in the National league. He admits that. But until he does get some help in the pitching end, he's not putting on any raves about his club.

Judging by his own admission he has but two hurlers—Jim Tobin and Russ Bauers. After mentioning those two Traynor eliminates the raptures while discussing the remainder of his pitching staff, composed largely of Cy Blanton and Bill Swift.

When not discussing the pitching problem, Traynor is quick to admit that he thinks the Pirates have got just about the best infield in the National league.

Gus Suhr at first, Pep Young at second, Arky Vaughan at short, and Lee Handley at third will compare favorably with any infield in the league, according to Traynor.

SCHEDULE 19 GAMES

THEATERS

NORTHWEST PASSAGE" will go before the cameras soon with Robert Taylor, Spencer Tracy and Wallace Beery. More than a year of research work for locations and costumes already has gone into this historical picture. . . . "San Francisco" with Gable and MacDonald will be re-issued for the San Francisco World's fair and later sent out over country again. . . . Lew Ayers is Miss MacDonald's leading man in "Broadway Serenade," just completed, and which closes her screen work before starting her concert tour.

Fay Bainter at Ohio.

Fay Bainter, who won an academy award this year for her supporting role in "Jezebel," is the particular star of "The Lady and the Mob," one of the Ohio features. She plays a wealthy old spinster who knows everybody in the town by their first names and who sets out to break up gangdom in her community. The barren mountain ranges of India's northwestern frontier is the rugged background against which unfolds the spectacular story of "Gunga Din," with Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and young Doug Fairbanks.

It's Night-Lifers Now.

It used to be New York's "400" which caught the attention of Hollywood film makers, but now it's the people who frequent the night spots. These are satirized in "Cafe Society," a Madison attraction through Wednesday. Madeliene Carroll typifies cafe society, while Fred MacMurray is a hard working wage earner on a metropolitan daily who teaches her a thing or three. Akim Tamiroff and Anna May Wong in "King of Chinatown" is the second feature.

Career vs. Marriage.

"The Lady Objects" is the story of a woman who was more successful in her career than her husband, but who found that she had to choose between her husband and her career. Lanny Ross is the husband and Gloria Stuart the wife. This is on the Ritz bill for Wednesday and Thursday, which also brings a revival of an old Will Rogers film, "The County Chairman," a George Ade play.

Playing Brats Pays.

Bonita Granville doesn't mind playing brats on the screen because she has made a reputation for herself in such roles. The best known was her vicious liar of "These Three," who had no redeeming virtues at all. Now she is playing in "The Beloved Brat," a much less harsh role, but still a meanie. "Smiling Along," comedy romance of a traveling troupe of actors, brings Gracie Fields, English star, to the Majestic on the same bill.

Familiar Story.

It takes no stretch of the imagination to picture American citizens selling military secrets, since the newspapers have been filled with similar stories in the past year. This is the theme of "Smashing the Spy Ring" in which Fay Wray and Ralph Bellamy are featured at the Park. "The Higgins Family" is an everyday story of one man's family with the Gleasons in the family roles.

BRIEFS

A large group attended the kitchen shower held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Penn in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arden Wells. They received a number of gifts.

* * *

Mrs. R. D. Williams spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Stull in Mt. Vernon.

Lowell Boner of Granville, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wellie Boner.

Dean Lemley returned to school in Indianapolis, Ind., after spending the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lemley.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carper of West Virginia, moved to their farm, recently vacated by Mrs. Cora Staley and son.

Mrs. Lillie Neptune, Mrs. Hattie Turvey, Mrs. Ray Algire spent the week-end with Mrs. Louie Morran in Lima.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McAnich of Mansfield were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Allwein.

DOMESTIC LIST TRAILS LONDON IN PRICE FALL

Stock Leaders Concede Two or More Points in Slide; U. S. Securities Up.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks shuffled over a downward route today, leaders generally conceding as much as 2 or more points.

The domestic list again followed London where prices weakened on a small turnover.

Wall Street, on the whole, seemed unable to work up any particular optimism over business prospects or Washington developments.

Principal share losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Sperry, Glenn Martin, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda and Westinghouse.

U. S. government securities continued to edge forward but corporate bonds were uneven. Commodities were slightly mixed.

Among items studied by market analysts were:

Sharp improvement in traffic was expected to give the country's railroads a favorable income showing for March.

Expanding demand for new automobiles in the first 20 days of March brought estimates sales for the full month would amount to some 335,000 units.

Latest figures on residential construction indicated the recession in the first half of the month had been succeeded by a brisk upturn in the final half.

BACKS MEASURE

House Committee Approves Bill Benefiting O. S. R. Guards.

The house finance committee at Columbus today approved and recommended for passage a bill sponsored jointly by Ralph C. Lutz of Lexington, Richland county representative and R. K. Shaw of Madison county, providing benefits for guards at the Ohio State reformatory, Ohio penitentiary and the London prison farm.

The measure would provide a 56-hour work week for the guards and sets up a wage scale divided into three classes: $170 a month for guards serving over five years, $160 for service over two years and $150 for less than two years. The schedule would be effective July 1.

Committee members estimated the measure would require an additional outlay of $58,000 annually in salaries. Two-week vacations with pay and annual physical examinations also are provided in the measure but a two-week sick leave provision was eliminated.

Cautious Police Hunt Human Bomb In Bank Robbery

CHANUTE, Kans. —(U P)— John Thornberg, 28, the "human dynamite bomb" who got $4,860 from the First National bank yesterday because he threatened to detonate himself, led state police on a dangerous chase today.

Under his belt were two sticks of dynamite, under his shirt were two battery wired percussion caps, and in his coat pocket was the spoils of his mid-day hold up of the home town bank.

He was last seen speeding northwest on a highway near Salina, apparently headed for Nebraska. Highway patrolmen were deployed along all road north and west of Salina. Nebraska, Iowa and Colorado police manned border points on main highways. They were warned that it would be suicide to attempt to close with the fugitive at close quarters.

Thornberg became expert in handling explosives as an oil worker. There was a possibility that he might accidentally blow himself up while in flight.

Thornberg was a recent amnesia patient in a Kansas City hospital. He is well known here as an eccentric person and bank officials had no doubt but that he would have blown up the bank.

OFFERS LITTLE RELIEF HOPE

tion incurred a general fund deficit of more than $1,000,000 while the Bricker budget would be within actual revenues.

3. That the Bricker budget meets the state's obligations under the school foundation program while the Davey administration increased the deficit in this fund by $5,200,000 in 1937-38.

4. That the Bricker budget will provide $3,000,000 payments against the school deficit.

"In the previous biennium," the governor declared, "the amount expended was $302,700,000 to which must be added obligations incurred and left over as deficits in an amount over $6,200,000, thus making the total cost of government in the previous biennium $308,997,000.

"For the current biennium, the aggregate recommendation is $302,032,000 of which $3,000,000 is for payment of inherited deficit, thus leaving the aggregate recommended cost of operating the state government $299,032,000, a reduction for the current biennium, including all items of government cost, of practically $10,000,000."

Representatives of large cities, although they declined to be quoted by name, indicated almost immediately objection to the governor's allocating $9,250,000 a year as the state's share of poor relief expenses.

A joint legislative committee, investigating relief needs, has proceeded on the theory that the state would pay half the total relief bill, estimated by municipalities at not less than $24,000,000 for 1939.

A February allocation of $1,250,000 from the state's $5,000,000 stop-gap relief appropriation failed to cover the needs of many large urban centers.

Governor Bricker told the assembly, however, that he regarded the proposed allocation adequate because improving business conditions could be expected to increase employment while unemployment compensation system benefits, started in January, would further reduce the direct relief load.

Analyzing his budget recommendations, Governor Bricker told the assembly that the cost of operating regular state government departments were reduced $18,000,000 for the two-year period but that this was virtually balanced by these increases.

"In a word, I believe this to be a comprehensive, clear and honest budget," said the governor, "which, instead of concealing, disclosed the real cost of state government."

Arthur Limbach, state Democratic chairman, assailed the budget, however, as "the largest ever proposed," adding:

"This proposed budget is almost three times as large as any previous budget and, although the Republicans will tell us this is because they have discontinued earmarking of all funds and brought them into one compilation, the fact remains that it is the largest budget ever proposed."

Republican legislators were unanimous in declaring the budget met the party's platform pledge of keeping state government expenses within anticipated income and producing a statement of expenses that included all governmental functions. Democrats declined to comment pending a study of proposals.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—(U. S. Dept. Agr.) —Buyers were making a few inquiries for wool on the Boston market yesterday, but sales were slow. Quotations on domestic wools were largely unchanged compared with the close of last week. Most holders of wool in this market were not trying to push sales because of the widespread indifference of buyers to making purchases of wool beyond covering urgent immediate needs.

J. A. C. TO ELECT

Junior Commerce Group Picks 6 Officers Wednesday.

The Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce will meet Wednesday night to elect a president and vice president and four directors.

The two officers will be selected from four candidates named by a nominating committee. Candidates for president are Atty. James Hoffman and Gene Earick. In the race for vice president are Richard Burnham and Robert Kuhn.

The terms of only two of the organization's directors—Ben Goodenough and Robert Finical—expire this year, but a recent ruling of the association automatically disqualifies directors who are nominated for office. The ruling eliminates Earick and Burnham, directors who were chosen by the nominating committee for president, respectively.

Atty. Francis R. O'Brien has been president of the association since it was organized about two and a half years ago.

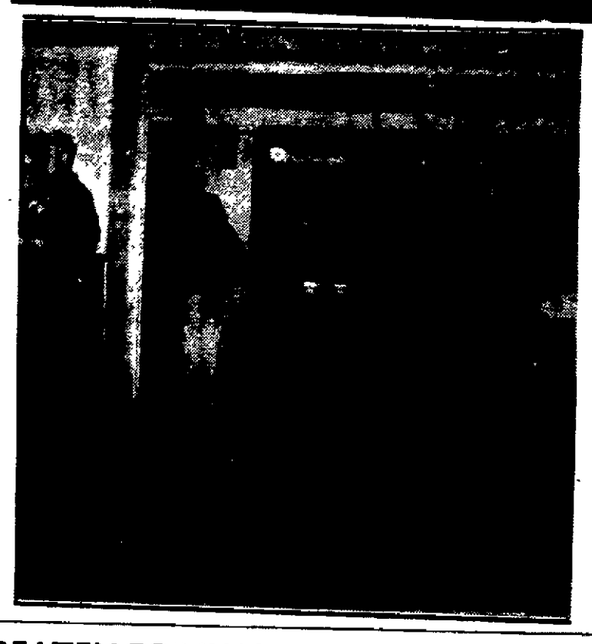
Auto License Rush? – There's None Here Yet



—News-Journal Photos.

Mansfield car owners were up to their old tricks this week having as their slogan "Why get a license today when you can put it off until the last day?" Although only three days remain after today in which to secure 1939-40 license plates, only 5,471 passenger car licenses have been issued to date. This is 164 behind the same period last year—and last year was a new low in procrastination. This is less than a half of the city's 13,338 licensed cars. With a corps of clerks at the Auto club office, there were times today when the clerks outnumbered the customers. Shown above are two views at the office of Deputy Registrar Frank Beverstock at the Auto club. At the top are the clerks who had nothing to do yesterday afternoon but who will be frantically rushed before the Friday midnight deadline. Below you see a scattered few license applicants. The office will be open each night until 8 p. m.

BEATEN FOR WALKING OUT ON CANTOR SHOW, COUPLE CHARGES

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—A man and his wife, who said they were beaten up because they walked out on Eddie Cantor's program of jokes about Adolf Hitler, will seek assault and battery complaints today against three of the comedian's friends.

Charles Gollob, 49, and his wife, Elsie, 42, were treated at the Hollywood receiving hospital last night for facial cuts and bruises they said were inflicted by the three men in a sidewalk brawl outside a Hollywood broadcasting studio.

They had walked out early, while Cantor was still cracking jokes about Hitler and other Nazi Germany notables.

Cantor had finished his radio show without interruption and had stepped from the broadcasting booth to the stage apron for a half-hour "after-broadcast" show when the trouble occurred. His friends said there was heckling from the rear of the room, and that loud Bronx cheers were heard as the Gollobs walked out.

Gollob said he was attacked by the men one of whom he said was Bert Gordon, a fellow-comedian on Cantor's show known as "the mad Russian." Gollob said he had explained that he and his wife were in the custom of leaving early to avoid the crowd, and that the attack was unprovoked.

Several stitches were necessary to close a gash in Gollob's lip and his front teeth were loosened. His wife's mouth was bruised.

LOCK ANTLERS

BEND, Ore. — (INS) — State patrolman rescued a deer from certain death when it was found with horns locked with another deer. Coyotes had killed and partly eaten one of the deer. The survivor carried the remnant of its former enemy—only the antlered head and part of the neck.

CHANCES GROW FOR RAW SILK OUTPUT IN U. S.

Machine to Cut Down Labor Costs Seen as Important to Meet Competition.

(By United Press)

SAN DIEGO—As the result of 12 years work, Glenn Hurst, silk engineer, believes he has perfected a machine that will make it possible for America to compete with the Orient in the production of raw silk.

Hurst has devoted years of his life to the single purpose of revolutionizing and mechanizing the silk production industry. His workshop has been a drab, gray two-story building in this city. Twice he has faced destitution, lost everything, has been forced to start again at the beginning. Today, however, he seems headed for success.

During the last 10 centuries many nations have tried to wrest the silk monopoly from Japan. All have failed. The all-important factor in each instance has been labor costs.

Hurst believes he has overcome this handicap by perfection of a device which makes the hardest part of the process—the unwinding of the silk from the cocoon to the skein—semi automatic.

Labor Cost Prohibitive.

In the Orient, the unwinding—calle fillature—for centuries has been done by highly skilled operators who do the work manually and receive the equivalent of from 50 to 75 cents a day. An American operator doing the same work would be paid at least $5 a day and probably more. Such increased labor costs have made profitable production of silk in countries other than the Far East impossible.

For decades engineers throughout the world sought a way to mechanize the fillature process. Hurst believes he at last has perfected this labor saving device. He steadfastly refused, however, to divulge its workings and parries all questions as to its possibilities.

An unnamed New York financier believes the process feasible as he is reported to be backing Hurst in further experiments on the process.

Fillature is not only the process on which Hurst has made improvements. During his work as a silk engineer he has applied modern scientific methods to the antiquated system of silk production and has produced a grade of silk which experts contend is of higher quality than any produced anywhere in the world.

Food Item Foremost.

Hurst's experiments began on the principal food of silk worms—mulberry leaves. After exhaustive search throughout the country for an ideal climate to grow the trees, he found this eastern San Diego county area ideal for their cultivation. The variety planted are the Luther Burbank trees, a species developed by the famous horticulturist which grows elaphantine leaves.

The silk worms themselves are given all the benefits modern science can afford. They are housed in an air-conditioned plant whose humidity and temperature are thermostatically controlled. Artificial sunshine is furnished by infra-red rays to stimulate growth of the worms.

Supplies Courthouse's Wants

Keeping county employes and visitors in "smokes," sweets and soft drinks earns a living for Jimmy Lemley, blind operator of a stand in the courthouse lobby.

* * * * *

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

He smiles at one of life's greatest misfortunes—total blindness—and welcomes the chance to make a living for himself despite his handicap.

That's Jimmy Lemley, operator of the confection stand in the courthouse lobby and one of Mansfield's most widely known personalities.

Since Jimmy started in business for himself nearly two years ago, he has learned to recognize the voices of nearly every person who works at the courthouse and scores of frequent visitors to the county building who are his customers.

Through his highly-developed sense of hearing he can identify the steps of his more familiar customers as they approach over the tile floor. Courthouse employes are often surprised to hear him address them by name when they had no idea he knew they were near.

Without a guide or even a cane Jimmy can find his way through the lobby and into any office on the floor. He chooses certain brands of cigarets and cigars from his cabinet because he knows the compartment where they are kept. He selects soft drinks from the case by the indentations on the bottles.

Few clerks are more adept at making change than he, although he must depend entirely on the "feel" of a coin to determine what it is. With paper money, however, he must trust in the honesty of his customer to tell him the denomination of the bill.

Jimmy's cheerfulness and willingness to visit have won him a place in the hearts of hundreds of county workers and courthouse visitors who buy their "smokes," sweets and soft drinks from him daily.

His friends proved last December that they think a lot of him when they contributed $100 toward the cost of a major operation for him at General hospital.

Jimmy's business establishment was set up at the courthouse by the Ohio Commission for the Blind through the co-operation of the county commissioners.

His hobby is baseball, and baseball to him means the Cleveland Indians. Despite his favorite team's nose dive last season, he was hopeful until late in the summer that the Indians might win the pennant.

Jimmy's hope is alive again this season, but this time he's not so optimistic about the chances for a World series in Cleveland. During the playing season he talks baseball with the fans at the courthouse and then listens to the series over a radio provided by his friends.

Because activities at the courthouse have a direct bearing on his volume of business, Jimmy keeps well informed in advance about the tax collection periods and the trials in court. They mean more customers for him.

Summer is better for his business, too, he says, and he's eagerly awaiting warmer weather. It boosts his day's income—and it's baseball weather.

UPWARD TREND SEEN IN OHIO HOME BUILDING

Ohio Real Estate Association President Tells of Boost in Construction Work.

Real estate activity in Ohio, following the upward trend of production in the state's industrial communities, is definitely improving, William P. Zinn, president of the Ohio Real Estate association, reported to a regional conference of realty men in Cincinnati recently.

"I find a great deal of optimism in the business as I get around the state," Zinn said. "True, deals in many places are slow, but the number of inquiries has increased very substantially since the first of the year and many of these are resulting in deals."

Curve Is Upward.

The curve of building activity in the state is moving upward, owners are experiencing little trouble in obtaining financing for homes, Zinn declared. He said Columbus, which is probably leading the state, shows a 100 per cent increase in building volume since the first of the year as compared with the same period last year.

Pointing to a healthy increase in the sale of existing property, Zinn called attention to the "absolute necessity of re-enacting the provisions of the national housing act which provides for mortgage insurance for this type of property."

"If this is not done, what now looks like a most promising market for this year may dwindle out and leave us in worse condition than we have been for several years," he declared.

MODERN LIVING ROOM

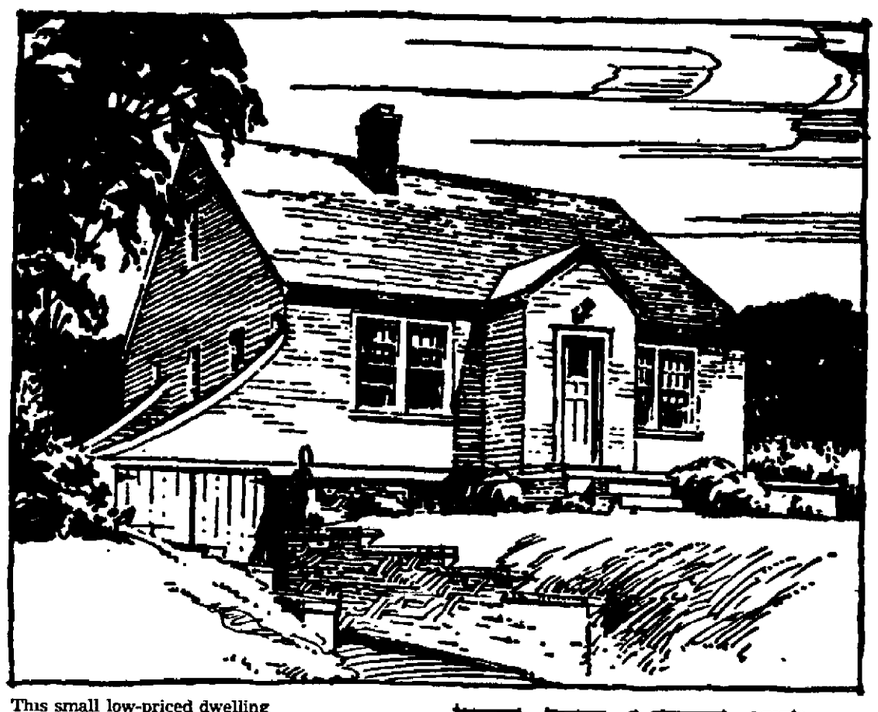
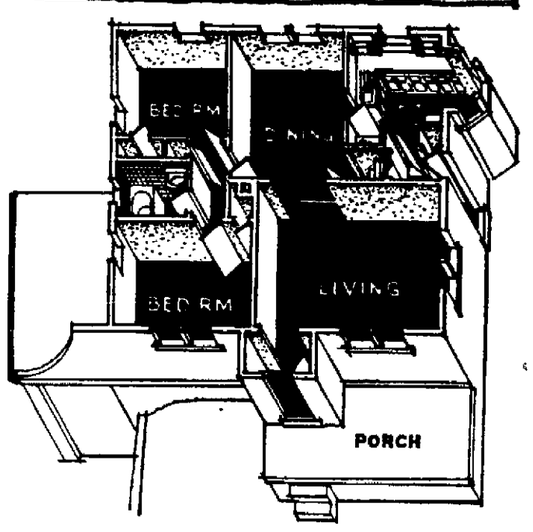
Materials And Supplies HOMES Plans And Estimates

Complete, Financed With Aid of FHA



This small low-priced dwelling situated in Omaha, Neb., is valued at $4,500 and was financed with the assistance of a $3,600 mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

The house has an unfinished second floor which may be developed for living purposes when required, as well as an attached garage and a basement. The kitchen has a service entrance that adds to the privacy afforded by the plan. It affords a high degree of livability and economy. The vestibule is useful because of the climatic conditions of the section, but it may be eliminated if the dwelling is reproduced in less vigorous locations.



Plastering and Woodwork Under Cleaning Process

With the advent of spring, home cleaning is the order of the day. Whether the home is to look bright from bedroom to kitchen and be clean and healthful during the next year depends largely on the condition of woodwork and plaster.

Spotty wood walls or cracking plaster can never look right or be washed really clean. The most economical way to insure lasting cleanliness and beauty is to sandpaper the wood, patch the plaster, and then apply white lead paint in bright, cheerful colors.

By this method, which insures service and protection for years, stains and dirt can be removed easily by washing. The increased reflection from the clean bright interior will save on electricity costs.

ROOM FOR BOYS

A colorful and comfortable boy's room has one wall comprised of bookshelves, built-in cupboards and desk. This, like the other woodwork, is painted a medium blue-green. The other three walls are painted a clear yellow. The desk chair, stool and dresser, are painted blue-green like the woodwork with deep red cushions to add pick-up to the room. The large easy chairs and couch are covered with a textured fabric in warm tweedy effect. A large framed picture of a sailing ship or a pictorial map makes effective decoration above the couch.

DAINTY NURSERY

For a nursery, walls painted shell pink make a dainty background for tiny furniture finished in bone white like the woodwork of the room. The floor covering of linoleum is rose-taupe in color with washable scatter rugs of blue and white cotton. Curtains of hydrangea blue match the blue spread tufted with white candlewicking. The furniture, decorated with touches of rose enamel, consists of a bed, play table, night table, a high and a low dresser and toy chest.

PAINT ON SCREENS

A coat of thin white screen enamel applied to window screens will impede the vision of outsiders looking in but will not obstruct the view from within the house.

Attic Fans Mean Cooler Homes In Summer Season

As the time for charting Spring repairs approaches, the home owner should consider means of making his house more comfortable during the hot summer months.

One method of effectively reducing the temperature in the home during warm weather is through the use of an attic ventilating fan, which circulates cool air through the house and exhausts warmed air through the attic.

Available to home owners now are attic fans designed to assure freedom from noise and vibration through the use of a sound-absorbent lining in the steel housing. The blades are die-formed, and their shape provides positive air movement.

LIVING ROOM-STUDY

A living room that is also a study, has soft yellow painted walls and woodwork. The furniture is painted French gray—which matches the carpet—and the desk is lined with jade green. A jade green stripe is used to trim the desk chair and a table. A small stand is painted black and a large chair beside it is covered with yellow in a slightly deeper shade than the walls. For the chairs, cushions of flowered chintz with yellow background match the window draperies.

MODERNIZATION OF PLUMBING URGED FOR HEALTH MEASURE

The need for the inspection and modernization of much of the plumbing in residential, commercial, and industrial buildings is indicated by a report entitled "The Public Health Hazards in Plumbing" just issued by the United States Public Health service.

The report is based on an inspection of 24,664 plumbing fixtures in 906 federal buildings in New York and Detroit.

The survey was undertaken by the United States Public Health service in order to determine if plumbing in federal buildings is as dangerous to public health as the plumbing in Chicago hotels which resulted in the amebic dysentery epidemic in 1933. This epidemic caused 98 deaths and the illness of more than one thousand persons.

The New York and Detroit surveys revealed that a substantial amount of the plumbing in federal buildings is potentially dangerous to health in that, under certain conditions, the drinking water supply of the building might become polluted with sewage.

Conditions favorable for the spreading of contamination in the water supply which the investigators found to be a greater or less extent in all of the buildings examined included: The occurrence of a vacuum in the water system; the leaking or general disrepair of valves; the leaking or general disrepair of water, soil, and waste lines; the stopping up of soil and waste pipes with the development of back pressure; and the contamination of open water storage tanks.

The survey disclosed that the degree of hazard to health in the plumbing systems of the various buildings varied roughly with the age of the building.

The report says: "While about the same percentage of fixtures was listed as disapproved in the older buildings as in the newer buildings, the health hazards surrounding their use was many times greater."

Of the 906 buildings surveyed, 32.3 per cent are residences; 7.2 are multiple apartments, barracks or dormitories; 4.9 are office buildings; 3.3 are hospitals; and the balance "unclassified."

The wide variety of types of buildings inspected indicates that the results of the survey apply just as forcibly to all types of buildings as they do to federal buildings.

With respect to the application of the findings to other buildings, the United States Public Health Service says: "As defects were found in the New York buildings in about the same numbers as in Detroit buildings, it can be concluded that the same conditions exist in federal buildings in other cities

"Also it seems reasonable to conclude that similar conditions could be found in other public buildings generally."

The implication in this statement, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau, is that a thorough inspection of plumbing, particularly in all old buildings is advisable.

Poodle Has Traveling Record of 13 Times Around World.

SEATTLE, Wash.—(INS)—Rags, a seafaring poodle who has traveled a distance equal to 13 times around the world, is regaining his "shore legs" for the first time in six years. Rags must stay in Seattle while his master, Captain Amund Utne, jr., goes to Italy to take command of a new ship in construction there. Since he was given to Utne in 1932, Rags has sailed 324,000 miles, becoming the world's most traveled dog.

MADRID POSTS WHITE FLAGS OF SURRENDER

appeared suddenly in the streets at noon.

Official Republican departments were virtually deserted. They were guarded carefully yesterday but anyone could walk in today.

News of the surrender sped like wild-fire through the city. Up to noon, however, the surrender had not been announced formally to the people. The announcement was given out to newsmen only at general headquarters.

Hitler Reaching Out For Danzig, Belief.

BERLIN—(INS)— Indications of a stiffening German attitude toward Poland on the Danzig issue abounded today as the reich's thunderous propaganda machine was turned upon Warsaw.

Belief immediately arose that Chancellor Hitler may be preparing for a sudden showdown on the free city of Danzig and the Polish corridor.

In some well-informed quarters, however, the opinion was expressed that the current Polish-German "fireworks" constituted nothing more than a diplomatic maneuver.

Germany, it was understood, is anxious to impress upon Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck the advisability of making no anti-German commitments during his forthcoming visit to London. On the other hand, Britain is believed trying to frighten him into a state of mind conductive to Anglo-French collaboration instead.

Efforts of large-scale Polish military preparations brought no direct comment other than denials, but the inspired German press and official statements assumed a tone markedly similar to that used against Prague before the dismemberment of Czechoslovkia.

Nazi press dispatches claimed that German women and children in the Polish corridor had been beaten for speaking their own language—and a semi-official pronouncement voiced the German government's "amazement" at this.

Both the German and Polish governments persistently denied reports that they have been massing troops along their adjacent frontiers, but other advices indicated the Poles may have mobilized as many as 700,000 men.

PLAN SPRING DANCE

SHELBY — Arrangements for the annual Spring dance at the Shelby Country club have been completed by the committee in charge this month. The party will be held April 15. Arthur Shreffler's orchestra will provide music.

The Canary Islands derived their name from "canis," the Latin word for dog, because early visitors found extremely large dogs on the islands.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? It's little wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. You won't have to endure constipation, you can avoid it. Eat All-Bran daily, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Rumania---Will It Be Pro-German Country?

The Nazi rolling stone has reached the Rumanian moss through a trade treaty giving Germany easier access to Rumania's resources, pictured here. This map shows the principal products of the little country that was conquered by the Roman Emperor Trajan in 105 A. D. and became an independent nation only last century.

mania is a "have" nation. Carved out of Turkey in 1861, it was doubled in size after the World war at the expense of Hungary and Bulgaria (still in the German orbit) and Russia. Some believe Carol would like to play with London and Paris.

But Carol has to sell oil and farm produce, buy munitions. Rumania is used to trading up the Danube. That's mostly Germany now, and trade with the Reich sometimes means the bartering of political rights.

Once the Playboy.

Nazi Germany does not approve of his friend, Madame Lupescu, who is Jewish. But Carol considers his love affairs strictly his own business.

The first of record was his elopement with pretty Jeanne "Zizi" Lambrino during the World war. She bore him a son in 1920, but by the close of the next year Carol was married to Greece's Princess Helen and the father of another son, now Crown Prince Michael.

Carol met Madame Lupescu, a divorcee, three years later. Called her "Bibi." The affair produced family friction and continuing Rumanian crises. Carol went into exile with Magda, renouncing his royal rights. Helen divorced him in 1928.

The Rumanian playboy flew back in 1930 and took the throne in a bloodless coup, displacing his son, the "boy king" who succeeded after Carol's father died. Lupescu came back to Rumania, too. Helen left the country.

Subjects Are Farmers.

As King, Carol has founded free schools and colleges and introduced modern farming. Four-fifths of his 19 million subjects are farmers.

His premiers have been of various political shades. But last December he disbanded all parties and called for a common front. At the side of the six-foot king now is stumpy, strong-armed Premier Calinescu who smashed the fascistic Iron Guard. Madame Lupescu, now 39, still is around.

Another hint: his mother, the late Queen Marie, is credited with putting Rumania on the allies' side in the World war. Through her, this Hohenzollern is a great-grandson of Queen Victoria just like England's King George VI.

But don't bet too much that Carol won't play ball with Rome and Berlin—if he figures it is the best way to save his country and crown.

JUDGE CONSIDERS PLEA OF HINES

Convicted Tammany Leader Seeks Freedom on Bond.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Supreme Court Justice Peter Shmuck today was weighing the plea of James J. Hines, convicted Tammany leader, for freedom on bail while his plea for a new trial is being decided.

For the first time since District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey began prosecution of the Hines case, the Tammany leader's benefactions from the late Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer were publicly estimated and fixed at $200,000 in the hearing before Judge Schmuck.

Assistant District Attorney Charles P. Grimes advanced this figure as one of the major arguments why Hines should immediately be sent to Sing Sing to make a start on his four to eight year term while his appeal is moving through the courts.

Mrs. Urschel was found in the center of the roadway and that the right headlight and radiator grill of the car were damaged, indicating that the driver was on the left side of the road when he hit Mrs. Urschel.

Boals testified that he found a partly emptied bottle of wine in the car and that Burger had admitted he had been drinking yesterday afternoon. He said he found the man "staggering" in the street when he arrived on the scene.

Burger pleaded that he was "dazed" over the accident. He said that a bolt lying on the floor of the car had rolled under his foot and he had reached down to pick it up.

"It was while I had my head down that I hit something. I didn't know what had happened," he said. "I pulled up and stopped and I became dazed when I saw what had happened."

cante triangle.

Great Britain and France, whose sympathies had been with the Republicans, now abandoned the cause, and on Feb. 27 they granted formal recognition to the Nationalist regime. They were anxious to stave off as much as they could at this late date further growth of German and Italian influence in the Nationalist regime.

The non-intervention committee, which had fallen far short of what it had expected to do, was dissolved.

After capture of Catalonia the Nationalists for the most part held their fire pending expected early peace. The government side likewise made no important military move, and the war in this sense stood still while soundings were made by both sides to end the long, bloody, exhausting struggle.

PLAN DINNER

Committee Named to Arrange 'Y' Father-Son Event.

Committees to plan for the annual Y. M. C. A. father and son dinner, to be held April 18 at the "Y," were named today by Irl Fisher, chairman of the boys' work committee.

Dr. C. W. Frickman was named general chairman of the event. The various committees are arrangements, William Houck and Joe Heilman; menu, Mrs. George Smith; awards, Harold Burns; attendance, Wesley Carr; decorations, Jerry Hayes, and program, Atty. Herbert Schettler and Harvey Bailey.

During the dinner various athletic awards including those for table tennis and the church basketball league will be made. The dinner is open to all who are members of the "Y" or any of the Y. M. C. A. groups. Thirty boys' groups are expected to be represented.

The dinner is sponsored by the boys' work and physical committee of the "Y."

Butler Board Asks County to Place Fate of Schools in Hands of State.

that the county board transfer sections of Bloominggrove district to the Butler township district, enlarging the enrollment of the schools at Adario.

After that is done, the township board wants the county board to recommend that the state department of education continue to help finance the Adario schools for another year.

The request for merging of sections of Bloominggrove township with Butler township was seen as a final hope for the Adario high school which was virtually doomed last week by the state department. A number of parents in eastern Bloominggrove township have petitioned for consolidation with the Butler township district.

If the enrollment of the high school can be increased, the township board members believe the state department can be induced to let the school keep its charter and receive state aid. There are approximately 40 pupils in the high school and 100 in the elementary school.

In requesting continuance of their schools, the Butler township board members pointed out that badly worn roads in parts of the township make it inadvisable to transport pupils by bus to other school districts.

The original proposal of the county board would provide for transporting the Butler township pupils to the Union rural district to the south.

Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, said today that it is imperative that the county board recommend a consolidation plan tonight since the county must submit its school program for 1939-40 to the state department of education by April 1.

Three successive meetings of the county board in the past three months have failed to produce a plan for merging the rural school districts in northern Richland county, ordered by the state as an economy move.

Handicaps to Self Government.

TO PRESERVE American democracy and pass it on unimpaired, it is important to understand it. Here is a good statement written in 1910 by J. W. Garner in his Introduction to Political Science:

"Democracy is a form of government in which the majority of the adult population participates directly or indirectly. It is founded on the theory that the average man is qualified to participate in the affairs of state, and that he is particularly qualified to select rulers who will govern in the interests of the nation.

"It is contended in behalf of this form of government that only through popular control is it possible to prevent the government from ruling in its own interests or in the interests of some particular class. Equally important with the influence of the people upon the government, however, is the influence of the government upon the people.

"Democracy, so it is argued, is in itself one of the most powerful educational forces in the world today, lifting entire peoples from the contemplation of their own personal affairs to a consideration of problems of national and international magnitude."

Democracy, it will be noted, assumes an average of adult intelligence sufficiently high to be safely entrusted with the responsibility of self government.

Accepting as self evident that criminals, law violators in general, and mentally sub-normal persons are NOT capable of self government—and realizing the millions that come within these classifications—it seems obvious that progress in sound education offers the only assurance of raising the average of intelligence to a point where democracy will not be threatened by an illiterate, indigent or self-seeking minority exercising a balance of power in elections.

The United States of America is the only existing government originally founded on the belief that a government "of the people, by the people and for the people" is practicable. It is an interesting experiment, the outcome of which rests upon the people of this and future generations.

More Arrests of Careless Drivers.

ADDITIONAL arrests by state highway patrolmen for traffic law violations in the vicinity of Mansfield, during the past week-end, offers encouragement to those who are hopeful for a reduction in reckless driving in Richland and nearby counties.

If this activity on the part of highway patrolmen continues, and if there is co-operation by the Mansfield police department in enforcing traffic regulations inside the city, the habit of careful driving can be quickly extended to a much larger percentage of local and transient motorists.

Few Mansfield motorists seem to realize, for instance, that while a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour is permissible on state and federal highways through the city (except in business districts) the speed limit on all other city streets is 25 miles an hour.

Enforcement of parking regulations has been going along in a quite consistent way in Mansfield for the past several weeks, bringing considerable relief from previous congested conditions in the downtown section, but little attention has thus far been given to excessive speed, disregard for stop signs, insufficient lights, or all-night parking of dark cars on residence streets.

Mansfield's co-operation in state and national safety efforts will require at least gradual steps toward voluntary observance of traffic regulations by more motorists, coupled with stricter enforcement for those who are habitual offenders.

Spanish Mavericks.

SPANIARDS are as great individualists as any in the world. That trait of the Spanish character has been especially evident in Barcelona. It was there that the strong anarchist movement developed, which Emma Goldman described in her American lecture tour three or four years ago.

A normal American who visited Barcelona just before the civil war says he found "ardent Communists, Trotskyists, Anarchists, Syndicalists, Republicans, Left Republicans, Catalonian Separationists and a dozen more gradations." They are hardly less varied in Madrid and other cities.

He concludes that "it will be hard to regiment such a people under a Fascist program or any other totalitarian regime."

In such a chaotic situation there is, strangely enough, some ground for hope that Spain will emerge from her present struggle less enslaved by Fascism and less subject to foreign domination than Franco's victory suggests.

Mistakes In City Zoning.

THE zoning of cities for residential sections, business and industrial areas, has advantages, when well done, but needs skill and flexibility. Otherwise it tends to "freeze up" a city instead of promoting its growth in a healthful way.

A "Regional Association" calls attention to mistakes that have been made in Cleveland, particularly with regard to business areas. It finds that property has been so over-zoned for business uses there that the city now has 100 miles of "surplus business frontage" which is not available for other uses. All this frontage is doomed to "unfairly high taxation and uneconomic overbuilding of small stores and gas stations, to their own and their competitors' disadvantage, resulting in bankruptcy and tax delinquency."

As a result of that situation, there will have to be a drastic revision of zoning in the city and suburbs through a new regional plan. The experts insist that, in any growing community, zoning should be "guided by a sort of continuous audit of population and property trends."

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Troubles over in Europe are as nothing compared to the conflict between the Federal Housing Administration and Federal Home Loan Bank Board over which is going to build the country's homes.

Theirs is not a strictly intramural battle. It goes outside, with the banks siding with Stewart McDonald and his FHA and the Building and Loan associations favoring John H. Fahey of the Home Loan Bank Board. Each outside group is supporting the outfit from which it gets the most butter.

The thing dates back to 1934 when FHA was formed as a means of guaranteeing bank investments in home mortgages. Since the depression, banks had been wary of such "slow" investments. They were not sure they could get their money out fast enough in case of another panic.

FHA pretty much remedied that. It took the bulk of the risk from the banks and shouldered it upon a federal corporation. Since then banks have been lending money to build homes as they never did before. Since 1934 they have poured approximately a billion and a half into home mortgages.

Safe for Banks.

UNDER the plan, bank advances up to 80 per cent on the face value of a mortgage, either to build a new home or refinance an old one. As much as 90 per cent may be advanced on certain low cost houses. If it is an old home it has to be in pretty fair shape, likely to last 20 years or more, which is the life of the mortgage.

The payments are not appreciably higher than rent. Moreover, the bank is pretty much protected against loss, because if one of the mortgages goes sour the bank simply turns the job over to FHA and receives debentures in return. The bank can transfer these debentures to the federal reserve and get cash for them, just as it can with government bonds.

But the Building and Loan associations have kicked that the plan is pushing the banks into a line of business which the loan associations have had to themselves for many years.

Most annoying to the associations is the fact that the banks are willing to refinance old seven per cent mortgages at about five per cent under FHA.

New Construction Jumps.

AT FIRST, banks operating under FHA were absorbing 10 old mortgages on old houses for every three new building jobs, but now the situation is just reversed. Seven mortgages go to new construction to three on old homes. Meantime, mortgage interest rates have been cut from 7 or 9 per cent to as low at 4¼ per cent.

Banks have been especially pleased with the layout because in recent years they have found mighty few outlets for their money. They point out that they represent a "reservoir" of approximately $45,000,000,000 of lendable capital while the Building and Loan associations have less than $6,000,000,000.

But it is FHA which is on the pan. It has "insured" $1,800,000,000 of mortgages (mostly through banks) and has a present legal limit of $3,000,000,000. All that will be absorbed this year. It has to get both an extension of life and an extension of its insurance from congress.

And there is where Fahey of the Home Owners Loan bank board and the Building and Loan associations come in. They proposed that congress dissolve FHA, transfer its functions to the loan board and carry on with one organization.

The banks think that smells like an effort to subordinate their business to that of the Building and Loan associations.

An unusual element is that here business is not asking the government to keep its hands out. It is asking the government to stay in —actively.

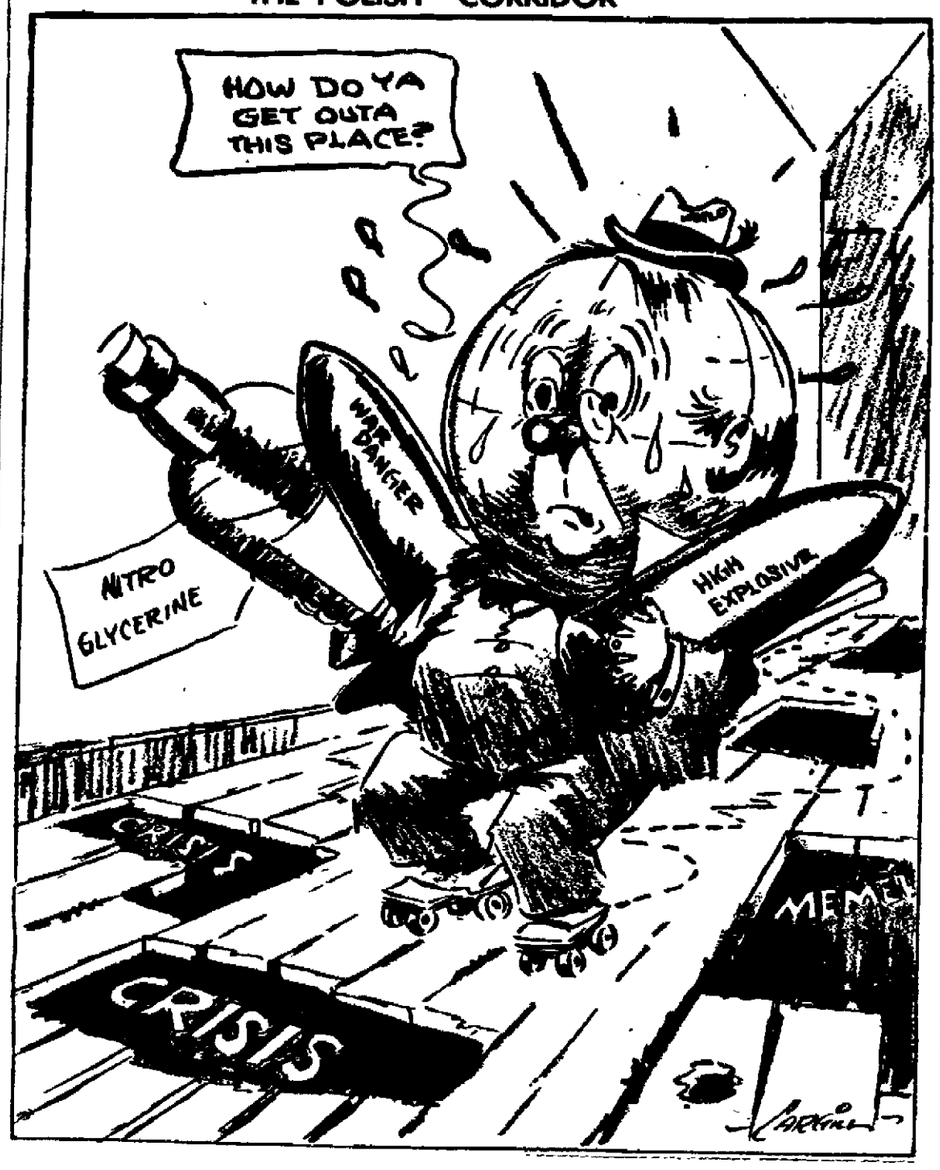
An Appeal to Conscience.

A witness before the house ways and means committee testifies that the 47-billion-dollar social security reserve is a "fiction" because the money will be spent for general government purposes and when supposedly needed, it won't be there. Then the only way for the government to make good on the promises to pay which represent the dissipated reserve will be to tax the people again.

Government usually has very little compunction about taxing, whether it is just taxing or taxing again. But in this particular instance it is plain deception, a "fraud on the people," that would be practiced. Government ought to have a conscience about that. It's the duty of the house committee and the rest of Congress to get that conscience aroused and at work to remove not only an illusory and deceptive reserve scheme but a needless scheme in a sound social security program. —Kansas City Star.

THE POLISH "CORRIDOR"



Reason Argentina Is Unfriendly

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

RECENT developments in Europe have intensified Washington's desire to consolidate Pan-American sentiment—on general principles, for one thing, but especially in opposition to totalitarian infiltration, politically and economically, into our neighboring southern republics. Under President Roosevelt's, Secretary Hull's and Undersecretary Welles' auspices we have done pretty well. Admiral Leahy has helped materially by advocating a Yankee policy of permitting the construction of our fellow countries' naval craft in our shipyards. To several of them we also have loaned expert advisers, military, financial and otherwise. These relationships have done a lot toward making us better and better friends. Between Uncle Sam and Mexico there is a little friction over the latter realm's expropriation of our nationals' oil, but it strikes no dangerous sparks.

Welles

Brazil likes us very much. President Vargas is our best booster south of the equator. He's a dictator but he's pro-Uncle Sam. Only a few weeks ago his government concluded a treaty with us which gives us the "inside" in his territory versus all Europe and Asia. And it counts. Brazil being a big enough tail to wag a deal of Latin American dog.

Generally speaking, the rest of the dog (discounting Yankee-Mexican disagreements as to oil) is willing enough to be wagged.

With One Exception.

We're not particularly popular in Argentina.

When one of our northern globetrotters visits the Argentine he's quite likely, upon his return home, to drop in on me, because I lived there for a number of years, and, while there, he's apt to cross what's left of my trail.

he Argentine is a tremendous producer of meat and its by-products—cattle, pigs and sheep. And we have sanitary regulations which practically bar it out of the United States. The Argentines contend that their "critters" have no diseases justifying such exclusions. They regard them as maliciously discriminatory, which makes them exceedingly sore.

Now, I'm fond of the Argentine. Yet I have certain reasons for believing that the republic's livestock suffers from various complaints that its growers don't admit.

I ran a farm there once.

My own animals were afflicted with foot-and-mouth disease, locally known as aftosa. It was so bad that, complicated with other things, it ruined me as a pastoralist.

There's some anthrax, too. I'm positive of it because it's transmissible from its four-legged victims to human beings, and I, personally, caught a case. Among humans the mortality rate is about 99 per cent, but I happened to survive. Nevertheless, I don't recommend it to be introduced here.

Farm Was Good.

Still, I had a good farm, with plenty of maize and alfalfa on it.

"Why," asked one of my neighbors, "don't you get some pigs, to eat your alfalfa and maize excess? Pigs are salable at good prices. And the beauty of it is that we have no hog cholera here."

So I went down to Matadores and bought 3,000-pesos-worth of pigs—mighty good pigs.

They fell sick immediately upon arrival on my place. I called in a "vet."

"They have a peste," pronounced "pesty," he said. I knew they had a "pesty" all right, but that wasn't specific enough. Accordingly I chased down from my "chacra" in the country to Buenos Aires, to consult the Rural society, the last word on that kind of thing.

"Your swine," pronounced the expert pig vet, "have cholera."

"But gosh!" said I, "we have no cholera in this country."

"I know," replied the vet, "that the government says so, because it doesn't want to discourage swine culture, but that's what your herd has got."

Well, that's what they had, and all my pigs died.

Accordingly, when the Argentine says it hasn't any aftosa, anthrax or cholera, I have my fingers crossed.

Health Advice

Daily Eye Wash Not Necessary.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE eye needs no treatment to keep it healthy if it is already healthy. I mean that a daily eye wash is necessary. The eye washes itself, with a constant flow of a neutral lubricating fluid secreted by the lachrymal, or tear, glands. The fluid is slightly antiseptic and prevents the growth of germs under ordinary circumstances. It washes out or dissolves all sorts of dust and foreign matter which naturally gets into the eyes on account of their constant exposure to the air.

To put drops in the eyes at night or in the morning, or to use an eye cup to wash them when there is nothing the matter, is not only unnecessary but positively likely to bring on trouble as the eye wash probably weakens the defenses.

Defenses Break.

The eye, however, as we say, is constantly exposed to irritation and infection, and sooner or later, in all of us, the defenses break down and it succumbs. There is hardly any human being who has not once had a case of pinkeye, or at least irritation of the lids with some little gummy secretion in the morning.

When these minor irritations occur, it is then time to use the boric acid—a saturate solution—either dropped in the eye with a medicine dropper or used in an eye cup. The eye cup should be nearly filled with the solution. Lean over at your washstand, press the eye firmly into the eye-cup, then throw the head back, and with the eye-cup held partly by suction, open and shut the eyelids rapidly four or five times until the eyeball is completely cleansed. The boric acid should cause no pain or discomfort, but on the contrary should be soothing.

Infections along the lids, consisting of small hair follicle infections, hardly big enough to be called styes, are annoying and should be treated with a ten per cent solution of alcohol gently brushed over the edge of the lid with a camel's hair brush. An old, reliable remedy for this is ointment of the yellow oxide of mercury, standard strength. Many oculists, however, think this old remedy is ineffective and prefer ointment of zinc sulphate.

In conjunctivitis, which is the stylish name for pinkeye, for an acute form, the latest advice is that we can save six to eight days of discomfort by using one-half per cent solution of zinc sulphate. Boric acid is too weak in these cases and argyrol, a favorite remedy, in the solution of ten per cent has comparatively little effect in cases of acute conjunctivitis. Methylene blue in very concentrated solution is effective, but should be used only by an expert oculist.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On March 28, 1846, General Zachery Taylor, with an army of 4,000 men, crossed the Rio Grande and established Fort Brown on Mexican soil. This was the beginning of the Mexican war.

A Farmer's Diary

My Mother's Comfortable.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ON MY BED, beneath the counterpane, is a worn and faded comfortable. For several years, this motley patchwork piece, so finely and neatly done, has been there every night for half or more of each year. When the weather is severely cold, I seem to get a homier, more comforting warmth from its downy presence than any other bedcovering could give.

More than eighteen years ago, I saw my mother cut out small, equal size patches from remnants of silk, casimere and flannel, of which she always seemed to have an ample store. I watched her large, bent fingers deftly ply her needle, sewing by hand each separate patch, until they formed a larger square a foot each way. These were carefully laid by.

To me it seemed a hard, laborious job, but when I would see her finger a lovely bit of goods almost caressingly and smile as she raised it closer to her fading eyes, I knew she felt a touch of beauty that I did not understand.

"I like to think of this comfort finished," she said one evening. "Sometimes I see it done, in my mind, with a clean, new, pink figured border around it, and the little white knots of wool scattered over the top like white-winged butterflies. Do you know, I think it's the last comfort I'll ever piece. My eyes are fading fast, and my fingers are so stiff, here lately."

"And who's it for?" I asked.

"For me?" I questioned.

"Yes—for you. It'll keep you warm long after I am gone. I feel old, and sometimes I think I may not have the strength to finish it. That's why I'm working all the time I have."

Each afternoon and evening she worked. I often saw her fall asleep from weariness, the numerous patches dropping into her lap.

Then one night, when I came home, I did not see her in her usual place. She lay unconscious on her bed, and never spoke to me again.

But, wrapped in a neat package, laid upon the corner of the stand, was the finished top of the comfortable, all ready for the under side.

To Be or Not to Be a Rubber Stamp?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHOULD HE BE A RUBBER STAMP? Follow the pattern Parents and Playmates had laid down. Or have the spunk to be his Actual Self?

Horace Hendricks wondered. He was only 18 but an 18-year-old wonder can plague as painfully as any worry in the length of all one's life. As YOU should know, for you've been 18 too! And whether you are 8 or 80 now, the chances are you're pondering on "whether it is better to be Me—or chuck my copyright and be A RUBBER STAMP.

A joke? Don't be too sure! Many a promising career and budding character have been wrecked for keeps by that particular "joke." A fact which H. H. was probably remembering as he wrote the following letter:

Dear Miss Robinson:

"You've given all America a chance to talk. Well, here's a confession that I bet will hit most of us where we live. . . . I was only a High School Freshman when it started. You know how everyone lectures a kid of that age. Giving you all the corny, conventional old advice. Saying you MUST do This or learn That. Everyone taking a crack at you. With the kids dishing it out as bad as the Oldsters.

"Well, I did what I suppose every person does, sooner or later —I TRIED TO PLEASE EVERYONE. Studied my head off because prospective employers were supposed to be nuts on math. Darned near strangled myself smoking, because it was considered 'manly.' Went out hunting for the same reason, though I loathed it, and the thought of bullets ripping through those helpless little bodies made me sick. Nevertheless, I did what everyone considered 'the correct thing.' And what did I have to show for it when I graduated?

"I was a wishy-washy, uninteresting kid with neither character nor personality . . . no ideas of my own . . . only a vague desire to be a journalist. Dad swore . . . said there wasn't any future in journalism . . . I must study engineering. So I studied engineering . . . worried through a year of it . . . lost 15 pounds . . . began making faces at myself.

"THEN I REBELLED! WHY BE AN ENGINEER WHEN I LOATHED IT? WAS I A MAN OR A MOUSE? WHY NOT, FOR ONCE, MAKE SOME DECISIONS FOR MYSELF? WASN'T I FREE, WHITE AND GOING ON 21? I WAS! ALL RIGHT—THEN WATCH MY SMOKE!

"Today, I'm making a real record and, better still, I'm living my own life. I no longer try to please anyone else unless there's a constructive reason for so doing. Once I feared to lose friends by being too independent. Now I actually have more friends than ever before. People evidently admire fellows who DARE TO BE THEMSELVES!"

Horace Hendricks, Stillwater, Okla.

There's a world of wisdom in that last paragraph. The world DOES applaud those who dare to be themselves. Above all other qualities, we jungle-bound mortals most admire COURAGE. Most of us go through life aquake with fear. CONVENTIONALITY is a symptom of that fear—that dread of the unknown. We follow beaten paths and advise others to follow them, because beaten paths seem safe. Yet, secretly, we despise ourselves for seeking safety—

AND WORSHIP THOSE WHO HAVE THE SPUNK TO FACE THE WILDERNESS.

Yet, even as we worship, we may also persecute because their bravery endangers and belittles our cowardice! We crucified Jesus . . . burned young Joan of Arc . . . fed hemlock to disdainful Socrates.

They showed us up, those heroes—we had to cast them out—

YET EVEN THOUGH TORTURED, LONELY, THEY KNEW A PRIDE AND COMFORT WHICH YES-MEN CAN NEVER FEEL!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — If someone will kindly warn me the next time Edgar Bergen brings Charlie McCarthy to New York I will get out of town and thereby save myself a lot of grief and his press agents a lot of wasted effort.

There are too many press agents working in Mr. Bergen's behalf, and since I am personally unsympathetic toward his particular brand of humor I see no reason why I should have my days and nights chopped up by an unending stream of men and women who, directly or indirectly, work for him.

On his visit recently the newspapers were treated to the spectacle of a dozen people, most of them unknown to one another, stumbling over themselves getting into and out of newspaper and wire service doors. All of them had one idea in mind—to get Charlie McCarthy's picture in the papers.

NOW let's analyze the set-up. Mr. Bergen has his own personal press agent. Then there are the radio press agents who are assigned to Mr. Bergen the moment he arrives in Manhattan. Mr. Bergen is also a motion picture star, and the motion picture company has its own press agents who go to "work" on Bergen when he comes to New York. Mr. Bergen also likes to stay in hotels when he is in New York, and of course the hotels at which Mr. Bergen stops are well supplied with high pressure press agents, all eager to capitalize on the presence of such a salable personality.

You see what I mean. They wear grooves in the floor coming up to your desk with stories about Bergen and McCarthy, reciting gags they hope you will print about Bergen and McCarthy, inviting you to cocktail parties for Bergen and McCarthy, wondering if you wouldn't like to meet Bergen and McCarthy.

No, I wouldn't like to attend a cocktail party for Bergen and McCarthy. For one thing, I don't like to drink in the afternoon. Nor would I walk across the street to have someone say, "Mr. Bergen, this is George Tucker—shake hands with him. He is from The Associated Press." Under those circumstances Mr. Bergen would be shaking hands with a news organization. Please understand I have never seen Mr. Bergen personally and therefore I have no reason to dislike him personally. I don't. He's probably a great guy. But there is something about the strained and unnatural voices of ventriloquism that grates on my nerves. This also goes for Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou. I just can't stand it.

HAPPILY, not many people feel the way I do about this matter, for Mr. Bergen is a prime favorite, and if he had to pay for all the free advertising he got while he was in New York it would bankrupt him. I don't care how much money he has—it would still bankrupt him. You can't buy the front pages of the largest afternoon papers in New York without chloroforming somebody or having a lot of money. And the front pages were his, also the second pages, the amusement pages, and the columns.

3 FARMS SWEPT BY GRASS FIRE IN CRAWFORD

BUCYRUS—Three farms east of the city limits were affected by the grass fire which swept 25 acres of farm land Saturday.

Farms on which weeds and grass were burned belong to George Christman, Clarence Kelly and William Hancock.

HEAR COACH HOLE

BUCYRUS — Members of the Bucyrus High school varsity and reserve squads and their coaches were given the opportunity to hear one of the outstanding coaches of Ohio, Monday night when the Bucyrus Y's Men's club presented Coach E. M. "Mose" Hole of Wooster at a banquet honoring the team at the "Y."

PLAN CANTATA

BUCYRUS—Sixty members of Bucyrus High school boys' and girls' glee clubs will be heard in the spring offering, the cantata "The Vision" by Samuel Gaines in the high school auditorium April 21. The rehearsals are being conducted daily by Miss Edna Ulmer, high school music supervisor.

Solo parts will be carried by Mary Ellen Thompson, Gladys Gallinger, Maxine Hailey and John Black and William Spaid. Dorotha Stuckert will present the story reading.

The presentation will be offered with full piano and orchestra accompaniment.

TOLD OF DEATH

GALION—Galion friends have learned of the death of Sanford A. Cartwright, 71, retired Erie passenger conductor, who died at his home in Kent, Saturday. Cartwright, who was a native of Galion, was forced to retire from his work five or six years ago. He started railroading in Galion and moved to Kent some 30 years ago.

His widow, Gladys, and one daughter, Leona Cartwright, of Kent, are the only survivors. Funeral services will be held at the home in Kent Wednesday.

SUFFERED FOUR YEARS FROM RESULTS OF CONSTIPATION

Says "World's Tonic Gave Finest Relief In a Long Time"

Hearing relieved sufferers say, "I got the finest relief from constipation in a long time," "It's just what I should have had in the first place," or "It fits me like a glove," is an old story to the World's Tonic man who is holding open house for the relief of faulty elimination sufferers at Central Drug Store daily. If you are one of these sufferers, if you are skeptical of its merits or even if you just want to pass the time of day, drop in and talk with him. You are not obligated to buy a thing. We are here to help in any way we can and will consider it a pleasure even to meet you and say "Hello."

An interesting experience was related by Mr. Harry J. Weber of 432 Lake Ave. N. E., Massillon, Ohio, which offers hope and encouragement to all like sufferers.

"Mere words can hardly express my gratitude for the feeling of wonderful things World's Tonic has done for me. I've been terribly constipated for a long time with many distressing results. My stomach has given me a lot of trouble and all my meals were spoiled by gas and puffiness afterwards. I felt sluggish all over and had frequent dizzy spells with hundreds of spots before my eyes. I'd have times when blood rushed to my head and a pounding would start around my heart that had me worried plenty. I had pains across the small of my back that made bending over to lace my shoes almost a torture.

"I didn't have much faith when I started taking World's Tonic but want to say right now that the first few bottles gave me the finest relief from my constipation and all its results, that I've enjoyed in a long time. When the World's Tonic man told me that constipation could help to cause the symptoms I had, he knew what he was talking about. I'm staying with World's Tonic and those stiff and painful conditions are all easing up in splendid style. I am eating good substantial meals every day and have noticed a lovely improvement in my disordered kidney condition. Count on me to do my share of boosting for this excellent medicine."

World's Tonic is intended to assist nature in promoting a free and liberal bowel action. You do not have to buy extra pills or tablets to get results.

GALION'S LAST CIVIL WAR VET DIES AT AGE 94

Philip Metzger Stricken at Hospital in Dayton; Rites Set for Wednesday.

GALION—The death of Philip Metzger, 94, early Monday morning at the Veterans' hospital in Dayton, took Galion's last Civil war veteran, and the last survivor of the 26th Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

The body was brought to Galion late Monday to the Volk funeral home where services will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be made here.

Mr. Metzger went to Dayton from Galion last May. Prior to that time he had lived with his daughter, Mrs. Grey W. Whitesell of Galion.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Whitesell; a son, Chalmer Metzger of Toledo; four grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Marion County Native.

He was born in Marion county, a few miles south of Marion, Feb. 19, 1845, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Metzger, and he came to Galion when he was six years old. He had claimed for many years that he had lived in Galion longer than any other citizen. His marriage was to Rachel Traul who died many years ago.

During the Civil war, he enlisted with his father and fought with him, side by side, for the Union, as a member of Company E for three years. He returned to his home and later returned to the war as a substitute for a Marion man, enlisting in Company D, 18th Ohio Infantry. He barely escaped being taken prisoner in the battle of Chickamauga, and engaged in three other major battles: Mission Ridge, Shiloh and Stone River.

After the war he became employed on the old Erie railroad and later in the maintenance of way department of the Big Four railroad company from which he was later pensioned. He was a member of the Dick Morris Post, No. 130, Grand Army of the Republic, of Galion.

Bellville

90 FATHERS AND SONS PRESENT AT GALION HI-Y CLUB DINNER

GALION—Around 90 fathers and sons attended a banquet of the Hi-Y club at Galion high school which was held Monday night at the Masonic Temple. Tables were decorated in the Hi-Y colors of red and white, with centerpiece of red roses. The dinner was served by a committee of mothers headed by Mrs. D. Carl Hocker and in appreciation of their work, the Hi-Y president, Richard Secrest, presented each mother with a red rose.

The program included invocation by Rev. L. E. Guffey; Richard Secrest acted as toastmaster; and toasts were given by Herbert Eichhorn, a son, and his father, Herman Eichhorn; trumpet duet played by Kennets Miller and W. F. VonBrock; selections by a vocal quartet composed of Robert Miller, Paul DeSilets, Louis Girton and Herman Guffey; selections by a brass sextette composed of John Elliker, Kenneth Miller, Eugene Sherer, Paul and Ellsworth Schnegelsberger and W. F. VonBrock. The address, "A Father and Son In Life," was delivered by Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of the First Methodist church. Group singing was led by W. R. Widrig, sponsor of the club; and short talks were given by Supt. O. E. Hill, Principal W. L. Swick and Widrig. The benediction was given by Rev. P. E. Auer of the Peace Lutheran church.

On the program committee were Clem Chandler, John Elliker and John Auer; and the social committee included Allen Hocker, Robert Cline and Lawrence Maidens.

Necessity for a larger and new hospital building for Galion is a vital matter, and much discussion of promoting a plan for a new building took place at last night's meeting of the Good Samaritan hospital board. The meeting was in charge of the president, E. P. Monroe. It is expected that steps will be taken soon toward securing a new hospital for the city.

The month of March this year was the biggest one in the history of the institution, and additional patients had to be turned away because the hospital was filled to capacity.

Plans were made for the board to purchase a new gas machine for the operating room.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

For a moment after Jim had fallen headlong from the top span of the bridge down into the swirling black waters below, Lona stood stunned. Then, with a scream, she started running down to the river bank, toward the place where he had disappeared. A dozen men had sprung into the water. She could see them milling about, searching. Other men were shouting. The place was a bustle of frantic activity and nobody seemed to see her or pay her the slightest attention.

Minutes dragged by while she stood there, shivering, minutes that seemed eternal. Then finally there was a new note in the shouting, and one of the diving men came above the water, a dark, limp figure in his arms. He was unconscious, Lona saw, his head lolling as they pushed her aside when she tried to get to him, and a perspiring foreman began the tiring task of applying artificial respiration.

"But I'm his wife!" she managed to sob out, and the rough hands on her arm grew more gentle and they allowed her to stand close by and watch.

"Is he bad?" she asked, between white lips, and the pitying looks sent her way answered her better than words.

Got to get him breathing! The words struck terror to her already shocked mind. Get him breathing—Jim! That was her Jim stretched out there with that grunting man working over him so brutally. His head was bleeding from an ugly gash, and he looked strange and wild.

The burly foreman was still working over him methodically when the clanging ambulance arrived and spilled a white-clothed attendant and a grave-faced doctor onto the scene. Followed another long interval when it seemed to Lona that she must scream with the suspense. Then, finally, a new tension gripped the crowded men.

"Is he all right?" Lona begged the doctor, uselessly. "Is he going to be all right?"

The doctor murmured something about getting him to the hospital, and they lifted him into the gaping ambulance as if he were a sack. Someone boosted Lona up the steps and she was beside him at last.

"There now," he comforted. 'We'll bring him around."

He lay still as death through that endless ride. Thanks to the foreman's untiring efforts he was breathing, but that seemed to be about all. His face was deathly pale except where it was streaked with blood from the ugly bruised cut on the side of his head. Fearfully, she tried to wipe the blood away, hoping for some sign of recognition. What if he should—leave her like that, without ever knowing her again!

He still was unconscious when they bundled him into the hospital elevator and wheeled him into the shining white room that smelled of disinfectants. They closed the doors on her then, and she was left to wait for what seemed endles hours. Only the hurrying feet of the busy nurses punctuated the long silence. The two workmen who had accompanied her to the hospital persuaded her, with uncouth gentleness, to sit down in an easy chair in the little coop of a sitting room provided for relatives. After that they left her alone, sitting together on the other side of the room, sending pitying glances her way and twirling their caps uneasily.

"It wil be hours before he comes to," the doctor told her when the operating room door opened finally, and they had wheeled the long, stilled form down the corridor again. "I'd go home if I were you, and eat. You can do nothing here, and you must keep up your strength."

But she shook her head.

"I must be here when he wakes," she said. She was remembering daddy back there in the prison hospital. She had left him, and he died.

The hours dragged by on leaden feet while she waited. Once a pitying nurse brought her a sandwich and a cup of steaming coffee from the hospital kitchen. She choked it down without tasting it, and watched from the window as night fell and the moon rose slowly in the east, casting its mellow light weirdly over the scene.

"It may be all night,' 'the nurse told her. "And when he does recover consciousness he may not know you."

Not know her! That would be worse, even, than this frenzied waiting. He must know her, her mind kept repeating as she walked restlessly about the little waiting room. He must know her! She had to see that crooked little smile spread over his lips again at sight of her. HAD to hear him call her "Girl."

'Are you sure he's going to be all right?" she asked of the nurse again and again, and looked away from the pitying glance that flashed in the back of the carefully impersonal eyes.

"We'll know when he — wakes up," was the only answer she could get.

It was nearing midnight and she sat for the past few hours with her tired body slumped into one of the wicker rocking chairs, when the nurse beckoned her from the shaded corridor with a new insistence.

"He's stirring," she whispered. "We want you there."

The inert body on the narrow bed loked long and lean as she tip-toed into the dimly-lighted room. His head was swathed in a turban of bandages, an ice bag topping all ludicrously. His eyes were fluttering, and he groaned as if in pain.

"Jim!" Lona called, softly.

He opened his eyes wide, then, and the "Tiny" look in them cut her to the heart. "Oh, Jim!" She choked back a sob under the doctor's warning glance.

For a long moment Jim stared at her. He seemed bewildered and she held her breath. Then, finally, when it seemed she could bear the silence no longer, the faintest of grins twisted his lips.

"Girl—" he brought out, and she sobbed in relief.

"Where—am—I?" he asked, after another moment of bewilderment. Then, as if realization had struck him, he tried to raise himself suddenly upon his elbow in the narrow hospital bed.

'How about Johnnie?" he asked, and Lona knew he was remembering the accident. "Did he —make it?"

"You saved him, Jim. And you musn't talk now. You'd better go to sleep. I'll stay here with you—"

"What happened?" He tried to sit up and a different look came into his eyes. "Did I fall?"

"You lost your balance, Jim. You've hurt your head. And you almost drowned. But you mustn't talk about it now, please. You're to go to sleep—"

"The net! Where was the net?" he demanded, his voice raising, his hands clutching at her with an almost frantic clasp. "I didn't go through the net, did I?"

"Hush, Jim! There was no net. You must be quiet."

Lona's eyes sought the nurse's across the bed. The nurse nodded warningly, and formed the word "delirious" with her lips.

"It should have held! The net should have held! They didn't make it right, I tell you! Somebody didn't want it to hold—"

"Jim, please!" Lona's voice was pleading. "You're talking wild—" She broke off as the nurse deftly whipped out her hypodermic needle and bared a straining arm.

"Just a minute, Mr. Bennett," she smoothed in her calm professional voice. The sound of it seemed to bring him to himself. He smiled weakly as he relaxed again on his pillow.

"Guess maybe I—do need some sleep," he admitted, his eyes normal again. "My head feels — funny."

"Just be quiet, Jim," Lona begged him once more. "Shut your eyes. I'll hold your hand. You'll feel better when you wake up."

"Girl," he said, drowsily, then. In another few minutes he was breathing heavily, his hand in hers relaxing as he sank into the healing stupor of the drug-induced sleep.

8,000 TO GET WATER BILLS

Statements For West Side to be Placed In Mail Thursday.

Approximately 8,000 west side water customers will receive their sewer rental bills along with their water bills Friday, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department said today.

The statement totaling $49,000, will be placed in the mails Thursday. Payments are due at the office of the water department in the city building between April 1 and April 15.

Of the total amount of the billing, Lingafelter said, approximately 60 per cent or $36,000 represented the water billing while $12,772 was for sewer rental.

DIVIDES $2,538 IN RELIEF FUNDS

County Distributes Allotment to Mansfield, Shelby and 11 of 18 Townships.

Mansfield and Shelby and 11 of the county's townships shared today in the distribution of $2,538 in state relief funds which supplemented a recent allocation of approximately $8,000.

Mansfield received more than half of today's allotment, or $1,714, while Madison township, which has the second largest relief burden, got $460. Shelby received $160.

Townships sharing in the rest of the allocations were:

Bloominggrove and Worthington, $17 each; Plymouth, $37; Springfield, $34; Jefferson and Mifflin, $23 each; Cass, $31; Monroe, Sharon and Troy, $5 each.

The funds, which represented the county's share of state beer and admission taxes for January and February were allocated on the basis of relief needs. The allocation was made by county commissioners.

The report on which the distribution was based showed 72 persons on relief in the 10 rural townships which received funds.

Seek To Prevent Retroactive Tax On State Workers

BACK CLAIMS 'UNFAIR,' SAYS SENATE GROUP

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The supreme court decision stripping state and federal employes of income tax immunity brought demands from senators today for legislation to prevent retroactive taxation of state workers.

It would be unfair, some senators said, for the treasury to assert back claims against 2,600000 state and local employes. They said states could impose back taxes on the 1,200,000 federal workers, but predicted this would not be done.

The general expectation was that the first federal tax would be levied on the 1939 incomes of state employes.

Roosevelt Upheld.

The 6 to 2 court ruling, handed down yesterday, supported President Rosevelt's contention that an amendment to the constitution was not necessary to permit the government and the states to tax each other's salaries. It reversed opinions which had stood for more than half a century.

In the past, the federal government has imposed income taxes only on its own workers and states have taxed only state employes. Officials said 33 states had income tax laws.

Some legislators said the decision undoubtedly would be broadened in a future case to lift the exemptions from interest on state and federal bonds.

"If you can tax the salaries, you can tax the securities," said Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.) "I feel confident the court will so rule."

Statistics gathered by Senator Brown (D-Mich) showed that the federal government could collect about $16,000,000 in income taxes from state employes each year. State collections from federal employes would depend on rates imposed by the various legislatures.

Some states now specifically exempt federal workers from their income levies, and treasury authorities said they assumed these laws would be amended in order to take advantage of the court decision.

The removal of immunity will not affect many federal and state workers, because their salaries are less than the basic exemptions granted in tax laws. Officials believed, however, that aside from these exceptions all persons on public payrools would be affected, except possibly federal judges. Some authorities contended that the constitutional provision against diminishing the salaries of judges would prevent their being taxed.

A house-approved bill providing for reciprocal federal-state taxation of employes' salaries is pending before the senate

Rainmaker Scores And Gets a Check; Weatherman Scoffs

FROSTPROOF, Fla.—(INS)—A real estate company was so grateful for the showers that ended a damaging drought in the citrus growing section of Florida that it announced today it would send a check to Miss Lillie Stoate, 67-year-old Mississippi spinster who claimed her powers brought the rain.

But from other sources—notably the U. S. weather bureau at Jacksonville—doubts were expressed that the rains came as the result of Miss Stoate's rainmaking efforts.

Miss Stoate, however, stoutly refuted the weather bureau's assertion the rains last night were caused by "an ordinary spring disturbance." Miss Stoate last night advised citrus growers she could bring rain, and she did, she insisted, by sitting with her umbrella a few hours each day since last Friday beside a large body of water.

"We don't know what power she has or whether she has any stuff on the ball, but the results are okay. We are sending Miss Stoate a check."

FILE 125 CLAIMS

Richland Workers Seek Compensation for Injuries.

Richland county workers filed 125 injury claims with the Ohio Industrial commission in February but the county had no fatal accidents during the month.

Two of the claims reported permanent partial disability of the worker, and 20 workers reported over seven days lost time due to their injuries. The total time lost by county workers was 4,779 days.

UAW Orders Secrecy on Murray's Speech

Up and Down THE STREET

A "thrill" that doesn't ordinarily come with a chocolate sundae was accorded customers at the Isaly Dairy store, West Fourth and Mulberry, at 7:30 p. m. yesterday. There came a crash and splintering of glass. Everyone jumped and were amazed to see a big truck parked where the window had been. A Columbus driver told police that he had parked his vehicle at a filling station on the opposite corner, that the brakes had let go and the machine careened diagonally across the intersection, crashing into the store window.

Sixteen members of the Mansfield Nature club were still wondering today what happened to the lunch they were to have had Sunday night, and more specifically, to H. M. Spandau who was to have had charge of the lunch. After a tour through the hills of southern Richland and Ashland counties, the club members planned to have dinner in a cabin near Loudonville with Spandau as the "chef." But he didn't show up, and the hungry would-be picnickers had to come home for their dinner.

It's never too late to learn. That may be an old adage, but Harvey (Pop) Rantz, 193 Sycamore street, believes in it implicitly. He went along with a group of employes from the Art Rattan works to a roller skating party at the Coliseum last night, and was persuaded to try his hand—or should we say feet?—at the sport. Despite the fact that it was the first time in his 63 years that he had ever been on roller skates, he thinks it's a pretty thrilling sport. He took only one "spill," and that wasn't a very bad one.

The late Diamond Jim Brady, one of the most fabulous eaters of all times, didn't have a lot on Mansfield's Bert Kuhn, at that. And consider the difference in their circumstances! At a party the other evening Bert started out with several portions of shrimp salad and in due time he consumed 24 oysters—big ones—on the half shell, then one jumbo frog, followed by a whole lobster. This, of course, doesn't include the "incidentals." When all of the other guests were completely stalled by the time the lobster was served, Bert cleaned his up to the last claw.

ENDS OWN LIFE

John Martinitz Was Operator of Bucyrus Bakery.

BUCYRUS — John Martinitz, operator of the city's largest bakery, was found dead in the office of his downtown shop early today of self-inflicted knife wounds.

The body was found by police after an alarm had been sounded by Miss Bessie Richley, an employe. Miss Richley, who reports for work at 3 a. m., found the office light on and the door locked.

Martinitz, a native of Germany and about 55, had slashed arteries at his elbows and ankles, according to Coroner R. O. Kackley of Galion. He was dead when found.

Workers said that Martinitz ordinarily went to work at 2 a. m. and that he had eaten his breakfast at a downtown restaurant at 1:30 a. m.

He made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Harold Bosse, who assisted in the management of the business. At noon today no report had been made on the cause for the suicide, nor had funeral arrangements been made.

VOTES TODAY ON OHIO 'RED' QUIZ

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A highly controversial resolution inviting federal investigation of reported subversive activities in the state and a proposal to reorganize the parole board went on the senate floor for a vote today

The resolution asking the Dies congressional committee to investigate alleged dissemination of un-American doctrines in Ohio came up as a special order of business, after action was postponed last week because of unexpected and strenuous opposition.

Sponsored by Sen. R. A. Pollock (R., Stark) the resolution was offered as a substitute for an earlier proposal to create a special senate committee for an inquiry into charges by a group of patriotic societies that subversive forces were threatening the state's welfare.

The bill revamping the state parole system would abolish the present four-member board and set up instead a three-member commission. It would oust from their $6,000-a-year jobs of Mrs. Myrna Smith, secretary to Martin L. Davey when he was governor, and other Davey appointees.

An administration - sponsored measure, the parole board bill was virtually assured of speedy passage by the dominantly-Republican senate.

Legislative action was practically completed last night on reorganization of the conservation division when the house passed the measure, previously approved by the senate. Minor amendments on the house floor necessitate the bill's return to the other branch for concurrence.

The measure replaces the present conservation council with a commission which is given power to select the conservation commissioner, now appointed by the governor and director of agriculture.

ADVOCATES RECREATIONAL PLAN FOR 'ALL AGES, ALL CLASSES'

Broader and more diversified recreational programs made possible through the expansion and development of public park systems was advocated by Arthur H. Alexander, chief of the division of landscaping for the city of Cleveland, here last night.

Speaking before nearly 100 members of the Mansfield Public Parks association at their second annual banquet at North Lake park pavilion, Alexander advocated city-wide recreation for "all ages and classes."

"Today the recreational program must be an over all job," the speaker said.

"Recreation is so diversified that it is necessary to expand our parks and develop them to provide programs that will interest everyone."

Alexander asserted that in most cities today there were too few swimming pools and playgrounds.

He told his audience that swimming facilities should be provided on the basis that three per cent of the people swim at one time.

"The need for playgrounds is increasing annually and all parks grounds should be preserved to provide play centers for future generations," he added.

He said the ideal city has one acre of playground for every 1,000 population.

William J. Russell, manager of engineering at the Mansfield plant of Westinghouse told the group that the development of the public parks was a "good investment" in that they provided a curb on juvenile delinquency.

"Look at your parks and playgrounds as an investment," Russell said. "If you don't spend your money for them you'll still have to pay for it in another form—taxes to keep up reform schools and penitentiaries."

"The parks of the country are a spot of Democracy where people of all classes meet on a common ground and rub shoulders."

Following the dinner, Toastmaster Edward Wiley introduced Mayor Claude M. Hunter who presented the W. C. "Bill" Mead trophy to Gordon Watson, president of the Liberty Park association, winners of the annual card tournament for the second successive year. Liberty park needs one more victory to gain permanent possession of the trophy.

Other guests at the banquet were members of the city Board of Park commissioners, city and county officials and WPA recreational leaders.

WIDOW OF CIVIL WAR VET DIES

LOUDONVILLE—Mrs. Lorena Wilson, 88, lifelong resident of Loudonville, died early today at her home following a lingering illness. Mrs. Wilson would have celebrated her 89th birthday anniversary Saturday.

Mrs. Wilson was the widow of Thomas Wilson, a Civil War veteran, and is survived only by a nephew, Earl Weirick.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday at the T. B. Gilbert funeral home with Rev. David Railsback, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. Burial will be in the Loudonville cemetery.

UNION ENVOYS BAR NEWSMEN AT CONVENTION

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Visitors and newspapermen were barred today from the convention of the CIO wing of the United Automobile Workers of America during the address of Philip Murray, CIO vice president.

The delegates themselves voted the exclusion of the press, visitors, and representatives from unions other than the UAW-CIO.

It was believed the action of the convention in going into closed "executive session" was to permit Murray to make an effort before the entire group to spike factional difficulties that have cropped up.

Sessions Start Late.

Acting president R. J. Thomas announced as the convention session opened this morning, more than a half hour behind schedule, that Murray was on hand to address the delegates.

Thomas then said it had been suggested the convention go into executive session and that all persons except delegates and the representatives of other unions, be asked to leave.

Thomas said there had been "some disagreement on some things among the delegates."

He called for a voice vote. Numerous "nay" votes were heard, but the proposal carried. Thomas then ruled that the exclusion should not apply to the alternate delegates.

Shortly after the guests and press representatives left the hall, Murray entered, accompanied by Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothier Workers of America, and other CIO leaders.

The CIO group has been at the sidelines of the convention attempting to prevent an open split developing from the factional contest over the forthcoming union election and other disputed points.

OPPOSES BILL

Sword Protests Plan to Divert Road Funds for Relief.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword was in Columbus today to join other highway officials in opposing the passage of an administration bill which would divert motor vehicle license funds to the state relief fund.

Contending that diversion of the license funds would seriously hamper the county's road program, Sword was to submit his protest at a house committee hearing this morning.

He pointed out that the county receives a large part of its road money from the state motor license fees and that to use them for relief would force the county to abandon its WPA road and bridge projects and throw more men back on relief.

The county has received nothing yet this year from the 1939 license fee receipts, although it recently got $14,695 as the balance of its share of 1938 collections.

FAIR ENOUGH!

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

WASHINGTON—Old Man Garner, that Old Man Garner, he don't say nothin', but he keeps on growing in the political consciousness of the national capital and of the nation-at-large as a candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1940, possibly with Jim Farley in the two spot.

Now, if you ask me the mail address of the political consciousness of the national capital and of the country-at-large, I have to say that it is just something that I made up.

But let me ask you if you haven't heard — and perhaps thought—a great deal about Mr. Garner these last few months, and if he hasn't been impressed on your political consciousness as a conservative Democrat, distinctly on the rugged and picturesque side, an opponent of extravagance, emontionalism and flippancy, and a symbol of government by professionals as distinguished from book-taught amateurs.

True, Mr. Farley himself has said that any politician of the Democratic party who openly seeks the nomination before President Roosevelt has had his say must be out of his mind. But that is just it. Mr. Garner has not openly invited the nomination.

That is being done for him, unintentionally, perhaps, through suggestion in the newspaper coverage out of Washington. If people reading about him think he is their man, he is.

Mr. Garner is a Cactus Cal Coolidge, whose very silence against portions of the New Deal becomes more thunderous each day while other men in open opposition to the administration waste their effect in small bleats.

Old Man Garner's silence is interpreted as both protest and loyalty to the president and contributes to his growth on both counts. But, of course, while the president is making decisions—and, if you think so, mistakes—for home consumption and for the export trade as well, Old Man Garner, the silent kibitzer, don't say nothin'.

What has he got besides those eyebrows and a still tongue in his head?

Well, he is a country banker with long experience both in business and in politics. He rocks along with people. He goes to bed after supper and gets up at some awful hour of the morning. He knows plenty about legislation and government.

What else are you wanting, because this just about spells him out and he has come along to the position that he now occupies in the field mainly on orthodoxy, simplicity, silence and, of course, party regularity. After all, it doesn't take much, you know. Worse men have made it.

And why then is he being talked up as a presidential candidate? Maybe you had better ask yourself that, because it is the likes of you who are talking him up. There is no mechanical boom, but everything about Old Man Garner points an appeal to the business man, especially the little one, and the home-owning and life insurance types.

Radical labor wouldn't like him, but the A. F. of L. kind might think that a banker and business man of long service in government would give business a chance to make a dollar and hire some men. He would try, anyway, and he would certainly have no truck with men who say that the capitalistic system is doomed and might better be destroyed and replaced now than later.

And in foreign relations he probably would aim to keep his emotions under his scalp and not worry too much about the democracy of Britain and France so long as ours was let alone.

Maybe you wouldn't care for him. That's all right. I am not trying to sell you a bill. I am just trying to count Mr. Garner up and see why he is coming along without having said aye, yes or no.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The big bad villain lives on a hill. It's a beautiful hill, and from the living room you can look through the big window and take in miles and miles of haze-covered Southern California scenery.

If you blot out the lower right-hand corner of the view you won't see the big hangar-like sound stages of Warner Brothers studios. And if you want to get away from it all (motion pictures) it's just your own fault if you let the WB hangars spoil things.

I'm up here at Alan Dinehart's investigating the private life of a villain. I'm sitting on a downy couch devastating a bowl of popcorn and listening to the profound philosophies of National Defense shared by the redoubtable Dinehart and his pretty young wife.

It's soon apparent that, villain though he be, Dinehart isn't an Ism fancier. Neither is his wife—and I honestly don't believe the villain beat her into meek accord with his own views on Americanism. In fact, for a villain, the Dinehart fellow lets the little woman speak her pieces quite freely.

Looking around the room all this time, I can't find any evidence that Alan Dinehart is other than a conventional movie villain. There's a nice grandfather clock in the corner, and a piano (they're both musical) and many shelves of books, and good paintings. There's a dog named Mr. Wu (or is it Poo?) and the picture is complete when young Mason Dinehart, a curly-haired bright little tyke toddles in to meet the company, duly shakes hands, snitches a bit of popcorn, and toddles out again. Ye complete move villain: he loves children, dogs, books, flowers, art, music and—of course—his wife.

But Mrs. Dinehart (who's Mozelle Brittone on stage and screen) insists that Alan has one villainous trait he cannot down. It seems that once in a movie he played a villain who wandered through stationery stores with sticky fingers. To this day (accuseth the villain's wife) her good spouse has not forgotten. Let him but get near a stationery store, and his fingers begin to itch. He walks past the counters and—well, it's called kleptomania in polite circles. Nothing serious, you understand. Just paper clips and rubber bands and similar trivia, and I'm sure he makes amends later.

A little sheepishly The Red Shadow admits his crime. (I'm calling him The Red Shadow because a villain ought to have a name.) He can't explain it, either. He says it's not because he made that picture under von Sternberg or some other artistic director who made enough takes to instill the taking habit in his actor. He says it's just the way it is, and he's sorry and all that.

Villains do have griefs, however. Mozelle's mother, for instance, dreaded having her daughter marry that awful person. She couldn't figure how her little girl could be happy with a man who was so wicked on the screen. After the marriage, when the bridal couple visited the folks, Mozelle's mamma still was timorous—until she met the villain and found he really didn't beat children.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

For a moment after Jim had fallen headlong from the top span of the bridge down into the swirling black waters below, Lona stood stunned. Then, with a scream, she started running down to the river bank, toward the place where he had disappeared. A dozen men had sprung into the water. She could see them milling about, searching. Other men were shouting. The place was a bustle of frantic activity and nobody seemed to see her or pay her the slightest attention.

Minutes dragged by while she stood there, shivering, minutes that seemed eternal. Then finally there was a new note in the shouting, and one of the diving men came above the water, a dark, limp figure in his arms. He was unconscious, Lona saw, his head lolling as they pushed her aside when she tried to get to him, and a perspiring foreman began the tiring task of applying artificial respiration.

"But I'm his wife!" she managed to sob out, and the rough hands on her arm grew more gentle and they allowed her to stand close by and watch.

"Is he bad?" she asked, between white lips, and the pitying looks sent her way answered her better than words.

"Why doesn't somebody get a doctor?" she demanded. "And an ambulance? He's got to get to a hospital!"

Got to get him breathing! The words struck terror to her already shocked mind. Get him breathing—Jim! That was her Jim stretched out there with that grunting man working over him so brutally. His head was bleeding from an ugly gash, and he looked strange and wild.

The burly foreman was still working over him methodically when the clanging ambulance arrived and spilled a white-clothed attendant and a grave-faced doctor onto the scene. Followed another long interval when it seemed to Lona that she must scream with the suspense. Then, finally, a new tension gripped the crowded men.

"Is he all right?" Lona begged the doctor, uselessly. "Is he going to be all right?"

The doctor murmured something about getting him to the hospital, and they lifted him into the gaping ambulance as if he were a sack. Someone boosted Lona up the steps and she was beside him at last.

He lay still as death through that endless ride. Thanks to the foreman's untiring efforts he was breathing, but that seemed to be about all. His face was deathly pale except where it was streaked with blood from the ugly bruised cut on the side of his head. Fearfully, she tried to wipe the blood away, hoping for some sign of recognition. What if he should—leave her like that, without ever knowing her again!

He still was unconscious when they bundled him into the hospital elevator and wheeled him into the shining white room that smelled of disinfectants. They closed the doors on her then, and she was left to wait for what seemed endles hours Only the hurrying feet of the busy nurses punctuated the long silence The two workmen who had accompanied her to the hospital persuaded her, with uncouth gentleness, to sit down in an easy chair in the little coop of a sitting room provided for relatives. After that they left her alone, sitting together on the other side of the room, sending pitying glances her way and twirling their caps uneasily.

"It wil be hours before he comes to," the doctor told her when the operating room door opened finally, and they had wheeled the long, stilled form down the corridor again. "I'd go home if I were you, and eat. You can do nothing here, and you must keep up your strength."

But she shook her head.

"I must be here when he wakes," she said. She was remembering daddy back there in the prison hospital. She had left him, and he died.

The hours dragged by on leaden feet while she waited. Once a pitying nurse brought her a sandwich and a cup of steaming coffee from the hospital kitchen. She choked it down without tasting it, and watched from the window as night fell and the moon rose slowly in the east, casting its mellow light weirdly over the scene.

"It may be all night,' 'the nurse told her. "And when he does recover consciousness he may not know you."

Not know her! That would be worse, even, than this frenzied waiting He must know her, her mind kept repeating as she walked restlessly about the little waiting room. He must know her! She had to see that crooked little smile spread over his lips again at sight of her. HAD to hear him call her "Girl."

'Are you sure he's going to be all right?" she asked of the nurse again and again, and looked away from the pitying glance that flashed in the back of the carefully impersonal eyes.

"We'll know when he — wakes up," was the only answer she could get.

It was nearing midnight and she sat for the past few hours with her tired body slumped into one of the wicker rocking chairs, when the nurse beckoned her from the shaded corridor with a new insistence.

"He's stirring," she whispered. "We want you there."

The inert body on the narrow bed loked long and lean as she tip-toed into the dimly-lighted room. His head was swathed in a turban of bandages, an ice bag topping all ludicrously. His eyes were fluttering, and he groaned as if in pain.

"Jim!" Lona called, softly.

He opened his eyes wide, then, and the "Tiny" look in them cut her to the heart. "Oh, Jim!" She choked back a sob under the doctor's warning glance.

For a long moment Jim stared at her. He seemed bewildered and she held her breath. Then, finally, when it seemed she could bear the silence no longer, the faintest of grins twisted his lips.

"Girl—" he brought out, and she sobbed in relief.

"Where—am—I?" he asked, after another moment of bewilderment. Then as if realization had struck him, he tried to raise himself suddenly upon his elbow in the narrow hospital bed.

'How about Johnnie?" he asked. and Lona knew he was remembering the accident. "Did he —make it?"

"You saved him, Jim. And you musn't talk now. You'd better go to sleep. I'll stay here with you—"

"What happened?" He tried to sit up and a different look came into his eyes. "Did I fall?"

"You lost your balance, Jim. You've hurt your head. And you almost drowned. But you mustn't talk about it now, please. You're to go to sleep—"

"The net! Where was the net?" he demanded, his voice raising, his hands clutching at her with an almost frantic clasp. "I didn't go through the net, did I?"

"Hush, Jim! There was no net. You must be quiet."

"It should have held! The net should have held! They didn't make it right, I tell you! Somebody didn't want it to hold—"

"Jim, please!" Lona's voice was pleading. "You're talking wild—" She broke off as the nurse deftly whipped out her hypodermic needle and bared a straining arm.

"Just a minute, Mr. Bennett," she smoothed in her calm professional voice. The sound of it seemed to bring him to himself. He smiled weakly as he relaxed again on his pillow.

"Guess maybe I—do need some sleep," he admitted, his eyes normal again. "My head feels — funny."

"Just be quiet, Jim," Lona begged him once more. "Shut your eyes. I'll hold your hand. You'll feel better when you wake up."

"Girl," he said, drowsily, then. In another few minutes he was breathing heavily, his hand in hers relaxing as he sank into the healing stupor of the drug-induced sleep.

8,000 TO GET WATER BILLS

Statements For West Side to be Placed In Mail Thursday.

Approximately 8,000 west side water customers will receive their sewer rental bills along with their water bills Friday, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department said today.

The statement totaling $49,000, will be placed in the mails Thursday. Payments are due at the office of the water department in the city building between April 1 and April 15.

Of the total amount of the billing, Lingafelter said, approximately 60 per cent or $36,000 represented the water billing while $12,772 was for sewer rental.

DIVIDES $2,538 IN RELIEF FUNDS

County Distributes Allotment to Mansfield, Shelby and 11 of 18 Townships.

Mansfield and Shelby and 11 of the county's townships shared today in the distribution of $2,538 in state relief funds which supplemented a recent allocation of approximately $8,000.

Mansfield received more than half of today's allotment, or $1,714, while Madison township, which has the second largest relief burden, got $460. Shelby received $160.

Townships sharing in the rest of the allocations were:

Bloominggrove and Worthington, $17 each; Plymouth, $37; Springfield, $34; Jefferson and Mifflin, $23 each; Cass, $31; Monroe, Sharon and Troy, $5 each.

The funds, which represented the county's share of state beer and admission taxes for January and February were allocated on the basis of relief needs. The allocation was made by county commissioners.

The report on which the distribution was based showed 72 persons on relief in the 10 rural townships which received funds.
